Washington—(CPA)—For several days the secretary of the treasury,

Andrew W. Mellon, has been urged to issue a statement about business in its relations to the tariff. The theory of those who suggested it was that

Mr. Mellon, coming from such a strong protectionist state as Pennsylvania and familiar with foreign trade and international finance, would have a better conception of the effects of the tariff than most commentators.

Also, there had been rumors current before the tariff bill was signed to the effect that Mr. Mellon disapproved of the measure and would recommend a veto. It is no secret that the New York financial community has come to rely upon utterances of the secretary of the treasury as perhaps of greater significance on business questions than those of anybody else in Washington.

Far from disapproving the measure

Mr. Mellon, in the statement which he finally issued after the close of the markets on Friday, takes the position that the bill is not very much different from other tariff laws

and, while he does not believe the new law is "free from defects," he thinks it is the best possible compromise which the legislative process permitted.

BACKS HOOVER VIEW

The Mellon statement does not reiterates what the president said he signed the bill. It nevertheless is expected to be of a reassuring nature to business. Ordinarily officials here are not concerned with the ups and downs of the stock market but they have been told that the recent decline in security values

is directly attributable to the passage of the tariff bill and fears of a fall-

Spain's King
In Interview
With Exile

Official Circles in Paris
Wondering About Results of Confab

Paris—(CP)—Spanish circles here

today debated probable results of a conversation between King Alfonso

and Santiago Alba, former Liberal premier who has been exiled since the beginning of the Primo de Rivera regime in Spain.

The king, known to be dissatisfied with the condition of his realm, was understood to have listened intently yesterday while the commoner, Santiago Alba, suggested a remodeling of Spanish royal privileges along the lines of the Belgian and British monarchies.

The interview has been the subject of considerable rumor and speculation for weeks, during which time

it was said that King Alfonso, enroute to England, would stop off in Paris expressly to hear what the former premier might say, and to listen to any suggestions he might make.

Some have considered that important events in Spain awaited the outcome of the meeting of the monarch and the statesman, and that there was even possibility of resignation of the Berenguer government, to be replaced by a Liberal ministry headed by Alba, or by a Liberal coalition ministry.

After the interview Alba issued a communique, which he said had been approved by the king, saying that he himself was averse to taking the premiership so long as the present incoherence and confusion obstains in Spain. But he emphasized

his desire to forget personal quarrels and differences of opinion in the "common work of restoring Spain to a democratic form of government."

"In the difficult moments through which Spain is passing," he said,

"all Spaniards must bend every effort in collaboration to assure the future of their country. All questions of personalities must disappear

before the national cause."

He declared that he would not accept an invitation to head a government until the populace had been consulted under universal suffrage

in freely conducted elections, but said that he was ready to lend his cooperation in aiding "Spanish renovation."

Hoover's Warning

WASHINGTON—(CP)—With a final vote due before tonight, Senator

Reed, Republican, Pennsylvania, today proposed an amendment to the "World War veterans' relief bill providing for a maximum allowance of $40 a month to an estimated 300,-

000 veterans who cannot trace disabilities to service origin. Denying

he spoke for the administration,

Senator Reed nevertheless vigorously opposed the pending finance committee measure.

WASHINGTON—(CP)—Despite warnings of an impending presidential veto, the senate today approached

a vote on the World War veterans

compensation bill with its sponsors

confident of enough votes for passage.

Administration leaders, however,

declined to admit defeat and pinned

their hopes of enacting measure suitable to President Hoover upon a substitute plan prepared by Senator

Reed of Pennsylvania.

A roll call today on the pending measure was assured by an unanimous consent agreement entered into the last week. It had already been passed by the house and with the senate voting its approval it would go to conference as it was considered modified by the senate committee.

In vigorous fashion, President

Hoover set forth his objections to the bill in a letter to Senator Watson, Republican leader, which was given out at the White House for publication today.

"We have stretched government

expenditures in the budget beginning July 1 to the utmost limit of our possible means, and have even incurred a prohibitive deficit principally for the relief of unemployment through expansion of public construction," Mr. Hoover said.

"Every additional dollar of expenditure means an additional dollar in taxes. This is no time to increase the tax burden of the country.

"CALLS BILL 'UNFOUNDED'

"I recognize that such considerations would carry but little weight with our people, yet the needs on our veterans' issue are and were

we dealing with sound measures;

but, as General Hines presents,

there are conclusive reasons for opposing an unfounded measure which is against the best interests of the veterans themselves and places an unjustified load upon the taxpayers

at a time when every effort should be made to lighten it."

The president said the bill would increase expenditures for World War veterans by $200,000,000 during the first year of its operation, with the additional expenditure totaling $225,000,000 in later years. The present expenditure is set at $11,000,000.

Kenosha—(CP)—Three persons were killed or fatally injured when a large automobile turned over in the ditch near Salem last night. The dead:

Joseph W. Royer, 60, Chicago, who died this morning in a Kenosha hospital.

George A. Quinby, 50, Chicago, said to be a business associate of

Royer in the American Asphalt Paving Co. of Chicago.

Mrs. Jean Crowley, 26, Milwaukee,

the other occupants of the car.

Mrs. Fred Tibbitts, 25, Milwaukee, and George Carroll, 45, Trevor, Wis.,

were injured.

They said the car was traveling fast along Highway 83, about a mile south of Salem when it suddenly headed for the ditch. It turned over once, throwing the occupants out.

Passing motorists took Royer and Quinby to Salem and the two women to Antioch, Ill. An inquest into the death of Mrs. Crowley was ordered at the latter city today. Royer was brought to Kenosha last night.

Royer and Quinby were both well dressed and the former had nearly $1,300 in checks, notes and cash in his pockets. He was wearing a large diamond ring.

The district in which the accident occurred is in the center of a summer resort district along the Illinois-

Wisconsin state line.

Carroll was released shortly after the accident to go to his home in Trevor, near here. Mrs. Tibbitts was also allowed to return to Milwaukee

after the slight injuries were treated at Antioch.

Sheboygan—(CP)—Two men were dead today and a third was injured

seriously as the result of traffic accidents.

Earl Radloff, 27, Port Washington, was killed when his motorcycle

crashed into an automobile here yesterday. John Hoff, 32, Port Washington, riding in the sidecar of the motorcycle, sustained fractures of the

1,587 Degrees Conferred At University Of Wisconsin

7 HONORARY AWARDS MADE AT EXERCISES

Justice Rosenberry and Former Ambassador Houghton Get Special Degrees

Madison —(P)— Under cloudless skies and a hot sun and before more than 1,000 friends and relatives, some 1,600 University of Wisconsin students, graduate and undergraduates, received degrees at the 77th commencement today at Camp Randall.

Of the 1,587 degrees conferred, 1,134 were bachelor and 256 master. Ninety-nine received doctor of philosophy degrees and 38 were awarded doctor of medicine degrees.

The exercises concluded a four-day commencement program which began Friday with Class day. Saturday was Alumni day; Sunday, baccalaureate day; and today, Commencement day.

Honorary degrees were conferred upon Alanson B. Houghton, Washington, former ambassador to Germany and to Great Britain; Marvin Rosenberry, Madison, chief justice of the state supreme court; L. R. Smith, Milwaukee, engineer, president of the A. O. Smith Co.; William Ripley, Cambridge, Mass., Harvard University economist; Kemper K. Knapp, Chicago attorney; Arthur Peabody, Madison, state architect; and Harry L. Russell, retiring dean of the university college of agriculture and new director of the Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation.

President Glenn Frank conferred the degrees and also gave the charge to the graduates, Mr. Walter Kohler spoke on behalf of the state.

HONOR AWARDS
Scholarship honors were awarded to 250 graduating seniors; high honors in general scholarship to 40 seniors; honors to 166 in general scholarship; honors for these, 30; and departmental honors to 14.

Twenty-five women in the University Nurses' Training school received certificates. Thirty-six members of the Reserve Officers' Training Corps were granted commissions as second lieutenants in the Officers' Reserve Corps, U. S. A.

Dr. Robbins W. Barstow, Madison, gave the invocation opening the exercises after the march of the graduates into the southern gate and around the outdoor stage to their seats at the north end of the stadium.

The degree of doctor of letters conferred upon Mr. Peabody and Dean Russell was awarded the degree of doctor of science. All others similarly honored were given doctor of laws degrees.

In conferring the degrees, President Frank said in part: Marvin B. Rosenberry—"Because to the post of chief justice of the supreme court of this commonwealth, you have brought a dynamic conception of the law, not as a system, born of logic and legislation and imposed upon society, but as a social and economic expression that must maintain a sensitivity to the changing temper and technology of successive generations; because your opinions suggest that you are on the side of development rather than formalism in jurisprudence, and because you are bringing to the social order of this commonwealth a distinguished and disinterested service, I am happy to confer upon you the university's honorary degree of doctor of laws."

Harry L. Russell—"Because as a son of this university your career has vividly exemplified the vigor and realism of her disciplines; because as dean of the college of agriculture, you have displayed rare genius in the selection and stimulation of a staff of scientists; and because your resignation implies not retirement but simply re-direction of your energies as director of the Wisconsin Alumni Research foundation, I confer upon you the university's honorary degree of doctor of science."

PRAISE FOR AMBASSADOR
Alanson B. Houghton—"Because, as America's ambassador in turn to Germany and to England you have brought an incomparably clear and courageous intelligence to bear upon the affairs of your time; because you emerged from the war uniquely free from hatred and hysteria; because you played a role of historic significance in reconstruction after the war. . . . But above all because a chance should be lost to emphasize the importance in American life of the sort of leadership grounded in intelligence and free from the distortions of prejudice, passion, and partisanship—which your career so admirably exemplifies, I am happy to confer upon you the university's degree of doctor of laws."

CHANGE COLLEGIATE SYSTEM AT U. OF W. IN DRASTIC MANNER

University Is Place of Learning—Not Social Club, Regents Rule

Madison —(P)— A collegiate reformation, which educators describe as the most sweeping of the present century, will be undertaken by the University of Wisconsin next fall. This was guaranteed Saturday with approval of a revision of the university's curriculum by the board of regents at its meeting here. Previously, the faculty had accepted the proposed changes which incorporate many of the advanced ideas in education. They were prepared by a committee of professors.

The new plan is based on a proposition that the university is a place of learning and not a social club, and yet, since it is a state institution, its enrollment must not be throttled by stringent entrance requirements.

President Glenn Frank of the university, announced the project as expected to have a "far-reaching financial significance for taxpayers and at the same time accord greater educational freedom to students."

"Students will be as free to enter the university as before," he said, "but they will be placed more carefully than before in classes where their particular stage of development and abilities indicate they belong."

Entrance requirements will be so flexible that nearly one-half of the freshmen students will be able to proceed with advanced work through placement and attainment tests. This is to reduce the dull studies of the first year to minimums. At the same time, any qualified student may enter Wisconsin, and pursue courses without working toward a degree.

The innovation that is forecast as alleviating the drain on taxpayers' pocketbooks and combining to make the university an institution of learning and not a social club will come in the last two years. Only those who have shown ability in students, who have shown ability in students, will be permitted to continue, will be permitted to enter on the junior year. This the framers of the curriculum revision estimate, will eliminate at least 15 per cent of the students.

TO GET CERTIFICATES
Students, who complete their first two years, however, will receive a certificate and the rank of graduate in liberal studies, whether they continue or not.

Dr. Carl Russell Fish, professor of American history and chairman of the committee on revision, explained this view when the group had formulated plans, by saying: "It is the belief of the committee that if their recommendations are adopted, the university will be more available than ever to our ambitious youths, while those who come will realize that the state maintains it to turn out useful citizens, and not as a social club."

Studies based on "human situations" rather than on subjects is one of the keys in the curriculum revision. Students will combine English literature and history for a comprehensive picture of Great Britain's civilization; some will study western civilization, while others will aim at "the attainment of familiarity with the philosophic approach to individuals, economic, and political life" in a joint course.

Modeled on the plan of Oxford, in England, the university will require a general examination at graduation. Under the present system, examinations are given only in subjects, while the new plan requires a test of general knowledge in the students field.

Exceptional students will not be detained under the revisions sanctioned Saturday. They may speed their work in order to receive a master's degree in four years, the same time the bachelor's is awarded. Estimates place seven and one-half per cent of the class in this category.

The iron-clad "hour requirements" in languages are abolished. Students formerly have been forced to complete the equivalent of four years of college language studies. In the fall, efficiency of intimate knowledge of a language will be proved by the student. Instead of forcing him to endure long language courses should his knowledge of a tongue be fairly complete, he will be able to forgo university language courses.

The class which becomes junior in September will be the first to fill these requirements. The senior class, graduating in 1931 will continue along the present system.

RAISE DUTIES ON DAIRY PRODUCTS, CONGRESSMEN ASK

Rep. Merlin Hull, Black River Falls Leads Fight

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington—An immediate investigation by the reorganized tariff commission with a view to raising the duties on dairy products under the flexible provisions of the new law is sought in a petition initiated by Rep. Merlin Hull of Black River Falls and signed by six other Wisconsin congressmen.

The Wisconsin congressmen are among the first to get a petition before the tariff commission asking for an investigation of the differences in the cost of production in this country and in competing foreign countries. The petition asks that the investigation cover all dairy products and manufacturers of this country—butter, cheese, milk, cream, condensed or powdered milk and cream, casein.

Rep. James A. Frear of Hudson, member of the Ways and Means committee of the House of Representatives which drafted the bill, Rep. Charles A. Kading, of Watertown; Rep. Edward L. Browne, of Waupaca; Rep. George J. Schneider, of Appleton; Rep. Florian Lampert, of Oshkosh; and Rep. John C. Schaefer, of Milwaukee, signed the petition, in addition to Rep. Hull.

Rep. William M. Stafford, of Milwaukee, refused to sign it, and Reps. Henry Allen Cooper, of Racine; John M. Nelson, of Madison; and Hubert H. Peavey of Washburn, had returned to their homes before the petition was started.

The new tariff law provides that the commission shall undertake such investigations upon the petition of interested parties, and shall report to the President, with recommendations as to whether the conditions justify an increase or decrease in the duty up to 50 per cent of the existing law.

The new law increased the rate on butter to 14 cents from 12 cents, the rate fixed by President Coolidge upon previous findings of the tariff commission, and gave comparable increases on other dairy products with the exception of cheese, on which it decreased the duty from 71 cents a pound, but not less than 37 1/2 per cent ad valorem, to 7 cents a pound, but not less than 35 per cent ad valorem.

Rep. Hull contends, as did Sen. John J. Blaine in his final speech in the Senate on the tariff, that the rates on dairy products are too low to give proper protection to the American dairymen in their home markets.

The Black River Falls congressman, serving his first term in the House of Representatives, was the first of the Wisconsin delegation to vote against the tariff bill, the other voting for it when it first passed the House. But when the final vote was taken in the House, only the two "regulars" from Wisconsin, Reps. Schaefer and Stafford, voted for it.

Rep. Hull fought for higher duties on dairy products all down the line, appearing before the Senate finance committee to urge higher duties than the bill provided when it passed the House.

LIQUOR CONSIGNED TO NEW LONDON IS NABBED IN FLORIDA

Two railroad box car loads of liquor, hidden behind bales of moss and valued at $170,524 at wholesale bottle prices, and consigned to New London, Wis., and Cleveland, Ohio, were seized and destroyed by federal prohibition agents at Ocala, Fla., late last week, it was learned here. The liquor was shipped from Moss, a small station on the Atlantic Coast line railroad in the western part of Florida, it is reported.

Universe Releases Huge Supply Of Power As It "Commits Suicide," Is Theory

Berlin —(P)— Evidence that the universe is "committing suicide" was laid before the delegates to the world power conference today by Sir Arthur Stanley Eddington, British astronomer.

Far from seeking to alarm his audience of engineers, however, the astronomer gave them a vision of the vast supplies of power which could be drawn from this orgy of self-destruction if the scientists could find a way to harness it.

The extreme penetrative power of the cosmic ray discovered by Kohlhoerster and by Robert Andrews Millikan, the American physicist, indicated to Sir Arthur that the source of the ray probably was the self-destruction of atoms diverting themselves to the last shreds of their energy and passing out of existence.

The rays are passing in all directions through space, proceeding from countless self-slaughtered atoms, and as he sees it the cosmic ray is in effect "the last moan of the suicide."

But inasmuch as atomic suicide must be committed by all available atoms before the universe is annihilated, Sir Arthur gives the cosmos as we know it quite a few years to live.

As to the possibility of the radiation from suicidal atoms somehow collecting and reforming itself into new protons and electrons, he expressed skepticism.

"On this point," said the astronomer, "you may guess what you will, I have no light to throw upon it, but don't forget that although we might provide in this way for the renewing of matter which has dissolved away and for the renewing of stars which have died out, there is an inexorable running down of the universe an energy is degraded from organized to more disorganized forms."

"Unless we can circumvent the second law of thermodynamics—which is as much as to say that unless we can make time run backwards—the universe must ultimately reach a state of uniform changelessness."

Nevertheless, he indicated, the engineers would find themselves in a paradise of power—where a teacup full of water would equal a modern power station—if it could be discovered how to incite the self-destruction of atoms when and where wanted.

If only this secret could be found, he continued, "instead of pampering the appetite of our engine with delicacies like coal or oil we shall induce it to work on a plain diet of atoms."

Low pressure of considerably intensity over the upper Mississippi Valley this morning with its eastward movement over Wisconsin. The tariff commission said that only one or two other petitions had been filed and that all petitions were being filed in the commission in the order of their receipt for the commission to take up when it is reorganized by the President.

RUSSIAN DIRECTOR CREATES STIR IN U. S. MOVIE CAPITAL

Serge Eisenstein Is Winner With Idea of Applying Rhythm to Talkies

BY JESSIE HENDERSON
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press
Hollywood, Calif.—(CPA)—Cinema-

ville is steamed up like a Turkish bath over the new Russian director, Serge Eisenstein and his idea of applying rhythm to the talkies.

Douglas Fairbanks went over to London especially to snatch him for the next Fairbanks picture and arrived in London only to find Eisenstein departing for Hollywood, having been already snatched by Paramount.

The blond, blue-eyed, humorous little Russian raced direct from New York to his desk here, pausing en route only to lecture at Columbia, Yale, Harvard, Princeton and the University of Chicago, to visit the hangouts of Chicago gunmen, the stock yards, the Grand Canyon, the painted desert and Henry Ford. He reached Hollywood just as his latest film is to be shown at one of the theatres and to learn that it had been slashed by censors in Germany and more slashed by censors here.

"But I do not understand why," he smiled gently, "it is a film intended for Russian peasants and expressing the wonder of machinery to those people who have never seen mechanical things."

"True, there is a comic sequence depicting an idyllic romance between a cow and a bull. The cow observes this splendid creature approach, surrounded by flowers—in Russia, it is amusing. Here, it is censored. Ah, well."

Moods, is perhaps a less obscure word than rhythm by which to describe the Eisenstein idea. The fundamental theory beneath Eisenstein pictures is that the settings, the accompanying music, the costumes, the characters, should express the mood of the scene. Upon this theory Eisenstein made, in Moscow, a picture.

POLICE AND FIRE CHIEFS UNITE IN FIREWORKS DRIVE

Two Departments Will Seek To Keep "Bootleggers" Away From City

Police Chief George T. Prim and Fire Chief George P. McGillan have joined in declaring a war on bootlegging of fireworks in the vicinity of Appleton this year.

The chiefs pointed out that in past years it has often been the practice of private citizens to erect tents or build small shacks just outside the city limits, where they cannot be molested by city police, and to sell fireworks there which are of illegal size or manufacture.

These sales, the chiefs said, often result in serious injury or death to children and adults. The chiefs pointed out that fireworks sold in local stores would be in compliance with the law and as safe as it is possible for legislation to make them. Such stocks of fireworks will be sold under supervision of the police department and therefore the police urge that citizens cooperate in the drive and patronize only stores within the city limits.

If bootleggers start operating outside the city limits, the chiefs declared, their presence would be called to the attention of the proper authorities and steps would be taken to have them arrested.

The laws regarding the sale of fireworks are very plain, Chief McGillan said, and as a last minute warning to storekeepers he outlined it as follows: "Chinese and domestic firecrackers not more than two inches in length nor more than three-eighths inch in diameter, outside measurements of container; colored fire in covered containers; light torches with lighting ends covered; fountains, flower pots and display wheels throwing a display not more than six feet; and uncolored sparklers not more than ten inches in length over all and three-sixteenths of an inch in diameter."

FIRE BALLOONS BANNED

The law also provides that "Under no circumstances shall any person sell, keep for sale, manufacture, or bring into this state for use therein any fire balloon, mortars or cannon, or any explosive cane, toy pistol, toy revolver, or other contrivance using explosive caps or cartridges, and Chinese firecrackers more than two inches in length or more than three-eighths inch in diameter, outside measurements of container, or any article containing a compound of mercury or yellow phosphorus."

The only conditions under which the works prohibited by this section of the statutes may be used is by special permit from the city or town, such as is secured by the American Legion and similar organizations for elaborate displays of fireworks at parks or in open fields.

"Every storekeeper is familiar with the law on these matters," Chief McGillan said. "Several months ago, when firms were buying their stocks of fireworks, warnings were issued, and complete information may always be secured from this department."

"We intend to countenance no violation of the law this year, and the 'teeth' in the statute makes its violation punishable by a fine of from $10 to $500, or not less than thirty days nor more than six months in the county jail."

"Enforcement of the state laws in the county is up to officials of those towns or to county officials. We are going to be responsible for the city."

Stocks Rally After Decline--Market Turns Dull

LOSSES ARE REPLACED BY SHARP GAINS

Outlook Still Unchanged by Weekend News But Bears Rush to Cover

New York.—(P)—Losses of $1 to $5 were replaced by gains of similar extent on the New York stock exchange today, after the latest wave of liquidation swept violently out of the market during the early hours of trading. Stocks were sold in large blocks during the first few minutes of trading, but trading turned extremely dull after midday. The early trading had indicated that the market was beginning to turn with the downward trend unchecked. The decline was accelerated by another sharp break in the Chicago Grain market, where the July position went below 90 cents a bushel for the first time since 1914. Both stocks and grain were inclined to rally later, however. The weekend news provided nothing from business quarters to change the outlook over which Wall Street grows gloomy of late, and bear pressure, together with further liquidation of weak marginal accounts, sent a wide assortment of leading stocks to new lows for the year or longer in the early trading. U. S. Steel tumbled about $3 to a new 1930 low at $122.50, only $2.50 above its November bottom, then rallied above $126. American Telephone dropped $2.75 to $200.25, then shortly recorded a gain of over $1. Radio and Bethlehem Steel, after selling off more than $1, to new lows, rallied to record moderate gains. American Tobacco B dropped $3.50, then recovered much of its loss. J. I. Case sold up about $9. American Can was well supported from the first, sagging only 50 cents, and by afternoon gaining more than $1. Public Service of N. J. was sold off about $1.50, then sold up more than $4. Losses of $5 to $7 in Columbian Carbon, Westinghouse Electric and Worthington were regained.

Grocers Drop Business To Attend Annual Picnic

Housewives shouldn't be surprised Tuesday when they go to their neighborhood grocery store, and find the doors locked. Tomorrow grocers will desert their friends the housewives and will rally at Shawano lake for their annual inter-city stag outing. It is expected 300 wholesale and retail grocers from Neenah, Menasha, Waupaca, New London, Appleton and Clintonville will take part in the outing. Grocers will assemble at 8 o'clock Tuesday morning on the square across from the Conway hotel, which has been reserved by Police Chief George T. Prim. Here banners and streamers will be attached to cars. The 120th Artillery band under the direction of P. E. Mumm will give a concert from 8 to 8:30 in the morning while the cars are being trimmed. The delegation will leave the square in a motorcade headed by a motorcycle police officer, followed by the band on a large truck. The delegation will stop for 10 minutes in each city enroute, while the band plays a selection or two. Dinner will be served at the Shawano park. It will be prepared by Gustave Tesch, George Pruchnoffski, Henry Tillman and Otto Polzin. The program for the afternoon will begin immediately after dinner. The grocers have received many prizes from the various wholesalers throughout the state. Prizes are to be awarded for every athletic event that takes place.

Max Cohodas, captain of the whole-salers also has had his team out for practice during the past week. Mr. Cohodas also will be in charge of the horse-shoe pitching contest. Next in line will be the tug-of-war between the wholesalers and retailers. Following will be a running race between Peter Traas and Steve Schaefer. The fat men's race will be between A. J. Ulrich of Menasha, George Bergman of Appleton, and A. J. Seithamer of Menasha. At 5 o'clock supper will be served, cafeteria style. After supper the famous Kangaroo Court will be in session. BABY UNINJURED AFTER FALL FROM TWO STORY WINDOW

In later life it will probably be safe for the infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Herman Schommer, W. Sixth-st., to skirt Niagara Falls in a barrel, or walk a tight rope from the Wrigley to the Tribune buildings in Chicago, after escaping injury yesterday in a fall from a two story window. The youngster landed on his stomach and examination by physicians immediately after the fall revealed the baby was none the worse for the experience.

The baby was left alone for a few minutes in a room on the second floor of the Sixth-st. residence. Walking over to the window it proceeded to climb over the sill and take the long plunge. A few cries issued more in surprise than in fear summoned the parents to the front yard, where he was found lying in the grass a few inches from the cement sidewalk.

RADIO, WEATHER REPEAT WORN OUT HEN, EGG DEBATE

Some Claim Radio Affects Weather, While Others Hold Opposite View
Washington.—The age-old question about the hen and the egg is being repeated today in a similar discussion of radio and the weather. Ever since radio made its appearance in popular form, farmers all over the country have ascribed the vagaries of weather and especially poor weather, on crisis-crossing of radio waves over their land. Scientists have scoffed at this complaint and have gone to the extent of proving that it is the same old weather we have been having for years before radio ever was known. Yet there are some scientists, right here in Washington, who are endeavoring to link radio with the weather in two forms. One is an attempt to foretell radio reception conditions from the daily forecasts submitted by local weather bureaus. The other is an effort to predict coming weather from the way the receiving set acts up.

OTHER WAY AROUND

This theory is not so much a reliance on the theory of radio causing poor weather, as much as it depends on the belief that poor weather causes static. Professor Charles F. Marvin, chief of the weather bureau of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, contends radio cannot be blamed for varying atmospheric conditions. "We have no absolute knowledge of any connection between radio waves and atmospheric phenomena," he says. "The detailed observations show that the same kind of weather we have had for many years past, before radio came into existence, is prevalent at this time. It is well known however, that thunderstorms, atmospheric electricity and perhaps the phenomenon of terrestrial magnetism may have influence on radio transmission."

HELP TO PROPHETS

It is on the basis of this belief that weather bureau and other officials are attempting to foretell weather and radio reception conditions of a locality. When static appears in the set there is a storm area between the receiving station and the broadcaster that is being tuned in they say. When heavy clouds appear in the sky and a storm is predicted, there is certain to be poor reception.

THUS THE U. S. NAVY DEPARTMENT is attempting to forecast storms and hurricanes by noting the direction and intensity of static in the air. Several private organizations are issuing bulletins of expected radio conditions, on the basis of U. S. weather reports. At the same time the U. S. Forest Service has a regularly operated static station in Oregon for nothing the direction and intensity of atmospheric disturbances as a key to probable fires in the national forests. It is trying to find the relationship between static and relative humidity, and thus show when the forest duff has been highly inflammable and therefore likely to start a great conflagration.

BADGER DELEGATION VISITS TEXAS REGIONS

Harlingen, Texas. — (P)—Accompanied by Gov. Dan Moody of Texas and business men from various sections of the state a delegation of Wisconsin manufacturers and real estate men arrived here today for a tour of the Rio Grande valley. The delegation was sent to Texas by Gov. Walter J. Kohler on Governor Moody's invitation and suggestion that Wisconsin should first investigate the land values of the valley before barring Texas companies from selling land in Wisconsin. In outlining the tour at a breakfast this morning, Governor Moody explained that the land companies are not represented in the inspection trip and declared that Texans who are acting as hosts have nothing to sell but were interested only in showing the visitors the land that this year is producing $30,000,000 worth of products.

INDIAN GETS LIFE TERM FOR MURDER OF WIFE

SENATE ISN'T APT TO REJECT RUTH IF SHE WINS CAMPAIGN

Illinois Woman Spent $250,000 In Primary; But It's Only 36 Cents A Vote
BY RODNEY DUTCHER
Washington.—It isn't so much the amount of money a candidate spends on a senatorial primary that counts as it is the way he got it and the way he spent it. Which is why no one expects anything very exciting to come out of the Senate's investigation into campaign expenditures this year.

Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, winning the Republican nomination in Illinois, spent more than $250,000, which is considerably higher than the $193,000 that got Senator Truman H. Newberry of Michigan into so much trouble; but the circumstances surrounding the case make it unlikely that there will be any serious effort to keep her out of the Senate, provided that she wins this fall over her Democratic opponent, J. Ham Lewis.

ONLY 36 CENTS A VOTE

To begin with, Newberry's $193,000 analyses down to an expenditure of about $1.50 for each vote he got. Mrs. McCormick's much larger figures up to only 36 cents a vote which is hardly enough to stir any senator to indignation. In passing, it might be mentioned that Boss Vane's $300,000 expenditure in Pennsylvania, which kept him out of the Senate, came to $1.34 a vote.

Moreover, no one has hinted that there was any improper use of Mrs. McCormick's money in the primary. Besides that, she contributed the money herself, and hence cannot be accused of putting herself under obligations to big campaign fund contributors. In other words, it hasn't yet been proved that a man can't buy his way into the Senate. Theoretically, each case before the Senate itself has been decided on its merits. The Senate can bar anyone it likes for any reason at all, but it has set no standard for admission as far as expenses are concerned.

The fact is often overlooked that senators following large campaign expenditures have not been barred by the Senate unless the collection and distribution of the money were in some way tainted by corruption or the odor of it. Smith of Illinois might be in the Senate today if it had merely been charged that $460,000 was spent on his primary campaign in 1926. The trouble was that Smith had been chairman of a state commission charged with the regulation of public utilities, and that his campaign contribution had come in large part from Samuel Insull, the big utilities magnate of the middle west.

CAIRO TO GET BUST OF QUEEN

Egypt finally is to get the bust of Queen Nefertiti-Et, which she has been trying to recover from the New Museum, Berlin, Germany, for many years. It will be placed in the Cairo Museum. The figure is the most beautiful found at Tel-el-Amarna by the German expedition of 1912-13. Although there never has been any question of Germany's ownership, the art lovers of Egypt have been urging its return. When King Fuad visited Berlin last he urged an exchange of pieces which would give his country the figure. The Cairo Museum has agreed to send to Berlin life-size statues of Amenhotep, who played an important role under King Amenophis III about 1400 B. C. Queen Nefertiti was the wife of Amenophis IV, and was worshipped as a goddess although her father was a cavalry officer.

CANNING FIRM SUES VILLAGE FOR TAXES

Judge A. F. Murphy, Marinette, the youngest circuit judge in Wisconsin, was presiding Monday morning at a suit brought by the Fox River Canning company against the village of Luontville. The case was being tried in circuit court here and Judge Murphy was called into the case by Judge Edgar V. Werner. The canning company is seeking to recover $355 which it alleges it paid in illegal taxes to the village on an illegal assessment. Judge Werner in a previous action in circuit court, set aside a verdict of the village board in raising the assessments of the canning company $22,000. The village appealed the case to the supreme court, which upheld Judge Werner's decision. The village refused to return the amount asked by the canning company because it alleges the company failed to pay the taxes under protest, as it should have done under the law. The canning company claims it did pay the taxes under protest.

OFFICIALS SHOCKED BY LIVE WIRE THEFT

Jacksonville, Fla. — (P)—Shocking as it was to city officials, a thief was apparently able to get away with several electric current transformers and many yards of high tension wires. This thief had the police and Ernest E. Anders, commissioner of utilities, worried. "No ordinary person could take those things down without getting killed or badly injured," the commissioner said.

Ryder Indicted By Grand Jury On Larceny Charge

New York. — (P)—A grand jury indictment has been returned against Harold Russell Ryder, 35-year-old partner in Woody and Company, bankrupt brokerage firm, it was learned today. The indictment charges grand larceny in the first degree.

The firm failed last Thursday with losses estimated at from $2,000,000 to $5,000,000. Ryder was indicted on complaint of John Vanneck of the Equitable Holding corporation, who demanded accounting for $95,670 he alleged he gave the firm to buy stocks which were never delivered. Tomorrow Ryder will go before a bankruptcy referee. It is expected that accountants will have discovered by that time how much of the $7,000,000 assets of Woody and Company is left.

WILL SEEK WRIT TO FREE MAN IN JAIL FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

Lamers' Attorney Charges Fine and Imprisonment Together Are Illegal
T. H. Ryan, attorney for John Lamers, Little Chute, now serving two months sentence in the county jail for drunken driving, was planning to go into court either Monday afternoon or Tuesday to ask for a writ of habeas corpus to secure freedom for his client. Lamers was fined $100 and costs and sent to jail for two months by Judge Berg last Friday and it is the contention of his attorney that a defendant cannot be both fined and sentenced to jail as punishment for an offense against a city ordinance. Lamers was arrested in Appleton and taken into court on a complaint issued under the city ordinance against drunken driving. In seeking the writ Mr. Ryan will point out to the judge that his client's offense under the city ordinance is not a crime or misdemeanor, under the state law, and that he cannot impose both a fine and a jail sentence. The heavy sentence was imposed on Lamers, Judge Berg pointed out, because of his past record. Lamers previously had been fined $10 for drunkenness, and a week before his last arrest he was fined $10 and costs for reckless driving.

MORE SHOWERS TO PREVAIL TUESDAY

Appleton residents were awakened about midnight Sunday when one of the worst lightning and thunderstorms ever experienced in this vicinity broke forth in all its fury. Streets lightsn parts of the city were out of commission as well as power lines, it is reported. The only damage reported in the city was done to trees and a few houses. The storm followed a hot sultry day with the mercury hovering between 85 and 90 degrees. The highest temperature recorded Sunday afternoon was 87 degrees above zero. This vicinity was still in the grip of the torrid wave Monday with equally high temperatures being recorded. The barometric pressure was recorded exceptionally low, giving promise of more thunder showers. A little of every kind of weather is on the menu for this vicinity for the next 24 hours, according to predictions of the weatherman for Monday night and Tuesday. Sides will be clear Tuesday, but showers will fall Monday night. The mercury is due for a slight drop, he says. Winds are shifting in the south and southeast. At 6 o'clock this morning the mercury registered 68 degrees above zero, while at noon it registered 86 degrees above.

NEENAH RIGHT TURN RULE IS DROPPED

Right hand turns on the Wisconsin-ave and Commercial-st crossing at Neenah, which have been made with the red light for the past two weeks, were reverted to the old method of speeding with the green light by Mayor Sandus, this noon. Many complaints from pedestrians that the new method gave them no protection on the crossings were responsible for the action.

LINDBERGH AND HENDRICKS BOTH PROUD TODAY

Officer Walter Hendricks was passing the cigars at the police station Monday morning with a prominent smile as he announced that he was "papa" of an 81 pound son. The boy was born early Monday morning. Officer Hendricks said he wasn't sure whether he'd name the boy "Max" or "Charles," after Schmeling or Lindbergh.

FRANCE HELPS ITS AVIATORS PAY FOR PLANES AND FLYING

Scheme Is Launched By Air Ministry To Encourage Aerial Touring
BY MINOTT SAUNDERS
Paris.—Airplanes at half price are possible under a scheme launched by the French Air Ministry in order to encourage aerial touring. Any French man or woman who wants to fly has assurance that the government will pay practically one-half the original cost and about 50 per cent of the fuel expense. This should greatly stimulate flying by amateurs, but it will also provide the French ministry and naval air fleets with a reserve of trained flying personnel, since even able-bodied Frenchman at least is subject to service. The offer is limited to French citizens and to aviation material manufactured in France. It includes professional pilots on both the active and reserve lists of the aeronautical department. The subsidy is in the form of six different kinds of cash premiums, with a view to encouraging use of the privately-owned touring airplanes, either at home or abroad. Premium of 8,000 francs, in the shape of a discount off the purchase price, will be given to the purchaser of an airplane of any kind. MORE FOR PASSENGERS In the case of a two-seater, a further premium of 10,000 francs will be given. If it is a three-seater a further 12,000 francs will be allowed for the second passenger, and an additional 12,000, or 34,000 francs in all, if there is three-passenger accommodation. Further premiums are provided for engine power. A motor of from 40 to 60 h. p. will be entitled to 100 francs for each unit of power and to 200 in case of motors from 60 to 100 h. p. No premium will be given for less than 40 or more than 100 h. p. In the case of a 60 h. p. motor the power discount will work out at 6,000 francs. The motor may be of the owner's own choosing and not one favored by the builder of the plane. Foreign made motors may be used, but will draw no premiums. PREMIUMS ADD UP If the airplane is of metal construction, an additional premium of 6,000 francs will be paid, and yet another premium of 7000 will be awarded if the plane is fitted with special safety and lifesaving appliances. Premiums in the form of maintenance allowances will take the form of a payment of 65 francs a flying hour above the first 100 kilometers, rising to 150 francs an hour's flight above 350 hours. This premium will be reduced 30 per cent if the engine is of foreign make. Owners will be entitled to premiums only if they make 200 hours of officially controlled flying within two years. Experts figure that these premiums work, with an ordinary two-seater, to from 44,000 to 50,000 francs reduction of the original cost of a plane ceiling at 100,000 francs, in addition to a substantial cut in running cost.

BANGOR RAILROAD SHOWS INCREASED EARNINGS SO FAR

Gross and Net Income for First Quarter of 1930 Highest in History

BY GEORGE T. HUGHES
Copyright 1930 by Cons. Press.

(This is the seventh of a series of brief analyses by Mr. Hughes on railroad securities. The intent is not to recommend the purchase or sale of any particular stock but to give the investor such information as may enable him intelligently to chart his own course.)

New York—In refreshing contrast to the great majority of the carriers Bangor and Aroostook has been reporting constantly increasing earnings during the past half year. Gross and net income for the first quarter of 1930 was the highest in the history of the road. Gross was up almost 19 per cent from the same period in 1929 and net rose more than 20 per cent during the same time.

The road is one of the smaller systems with only a little over 600 miles of first track and a total trackage of around 870 miles. It is located entirely in northern Maine and its present prosperity is due in large part to the increase in loadings of potatoes, which is the big crop in that section and which have been bringing profitable prices. It is one of the few localities in the United States where there has been farm prosperity.

Of course reliance upon any one commodity for the bulk of its loadings makes for wide fluctuations in earnings and may at times be a liability instead of an asset. However, the immediate outlook is highly favorable.

There is no important public interest in the bonds, all of which are amply protected by earnings and reasonably good investments but with inactive markets. The preferred stock is interesting for income. It pays 7 per cent and dividend requirements were covered in 1929 between six and seven over, the only drawback being that it is redeemable at 110 and sells in the market well above that price.

The common stock, in which a mild speculative account has been built up of late, consists of 136,434 shares of $50 par value. On this stock dividends are being paid at an annual rate of $3.50 but earnings would justify a substantial increase and such increase is predicted sooner or later. Without taking into consideration any excess that the road might be forced to turn over to the government, income has been running at an annual rate of approximately $10 a share. The road is well managed and the bookkeeping conservative. In the proposed merger plan of the Interstate Commerce Commission it is linked with the Boston and Maine.

THEODORE DREISER SEES SOVIET TOP WESTERN CAPITALISM

Moscow — (AP)—Theodore Dreiser, the novelist, today was quoted by an organ of the Soviet government, predicting the possibility that Russia in the near future would overshadow western capital in importance.

The writer, asked to give his views by the international bureau of revolutionary literature regarding possible war against the Soviet Union, said:

"I am against any conflict with the Soviet Union no matter what its source.

"I consider the Soviet Union as an economic and political power which even now is in a position to compete with western capitalism and it is possible that in the near future it will be stronger than western capital.

"It is true that capitalism up to the present has played an important role in the development of the United States but there are signs that the United States is becoming an oligarchical society wherein everything is subordinated to financial interests of banks which now fulfill only administrative functions, create nothing, and only tend to fortify the power of financial dynasties which are ready to take the place of the recently exterminated royal houses."

SUGAR IMPROVES FLAVOR OF MANY FAMILIAR MEATS

Lamb, Beef and Ham are Delicious Seasoned With Sugar and Salt

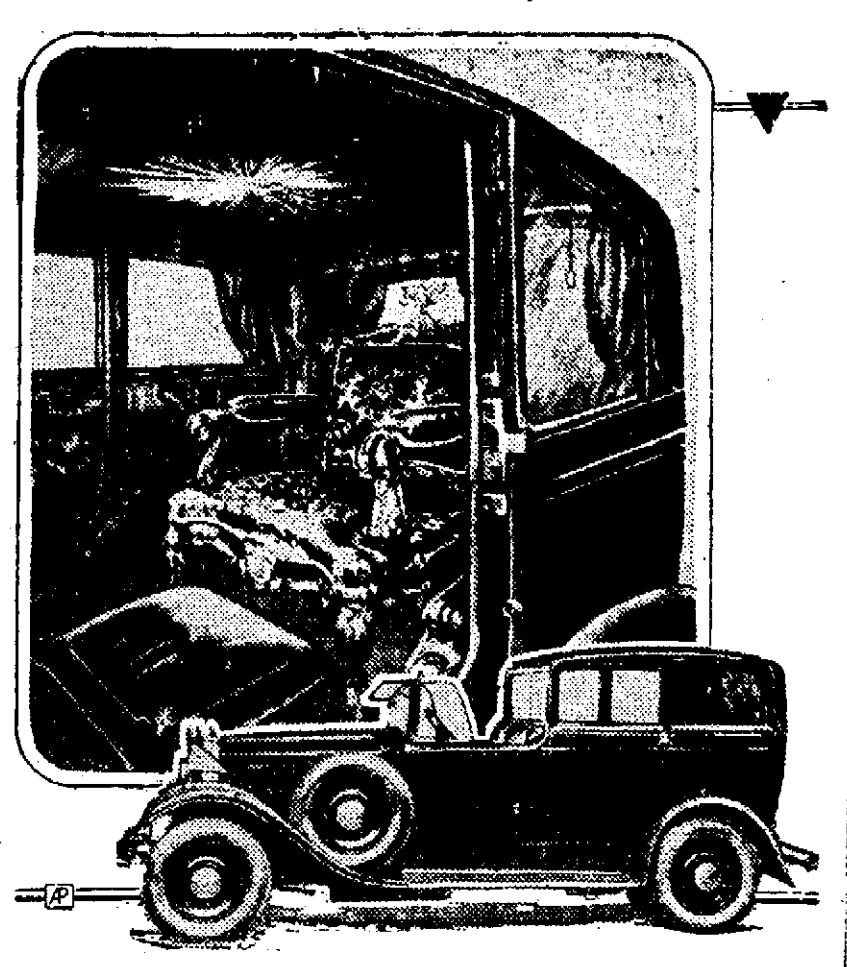

The popularity of baked ham lies to a great extent in its glazed sugar coating. But many cooks use sugar in boiling ham. By adding a half to a cup of sugar to the water, also a half cup of vinegar, the meat "picks up" a savory-sweet flavor during the cooking that is most pleasing.

Sugar also improves the flavor of lamb chops when that meat is allowed to stand before frying in the following mixture—1 teaspoon sugar, ½ teaspoon salt, 1 or 2 teaspoons vinegar or lemon juice and 1 tablespoon salad oil. The sugar blends deliciously with all the other ingredients and the meat juices.

Beef steaks composed solely of meat, or in combination with vegetables, are also most taste-pleasing when a dash of sugar is added with the salt and pepper.

Aside from using sugar to season meat, it can be used successfully in the preparation of most canned and fresh vegetables. Sugar emphasizes the mild taste of spinach; mellow the tartness of tomatoes; pleases the palate with the flavor of peas, carrots, corn, cabbage, beans and other vegetables. Most foods are more delicious with sugar. The Sugar Institute.

Pope To Sit On Throne In New $50,000 Motor

Pope Pius' new $50,000 motor car (below) which includes a gilded throne (top) which can be used as the back seat when the pontiff is riding alone. The decorations are of gold, silver and ivory with tapestry fittings.

Milan, Italy — (AP)—Pope Pius has a new $50,000 automobile.

The car was presented the Pontiff by the automobile club of Milan.

It has a throne, gilded, and usable when the pontiff motors alone, and it can be removed and replaced by two other highly decorative and comfortable seats when he has a companion.

It is decorated in gold, silver and ivory. Fittings include tapestry in the Venetian style.

Presentation of this last word in motored luxury was made at a ceremony during which the pope blessed a delegation of Milan citizens and presented their cars with small papal flags.

And now that the pope has a motor car, plans are reported in the United States and in Spain to present him with a private yacht.

American Catholics and a group in Spain it is reported in Rome are raising funds to purchase a vessel suited to the pontiff's needs.

The movement was reported to have started by the Pope's action in hiring a ship in order to send Cardinal Lepicier as papal legate to the Eucharistic congress in Carthage.

Negotiations would be necessary between the Vatican and Italy concerning a port for the pontifical ship.

GRIGSBY-GRUNOW PLANS TO ENTER FIGHT WITH R. C. A.

Believe Chicago Firm Will Start Civil Suit Against Company

BY ROBERT MACK
Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press

Washington—(CPA)—With former Senator James A. Reed as its legal mentor, the Grigsby-Grunow company of Chicago plans to thrust itself into the court action brought by the government against the Radio Corporation of America and its affiliated and associated companies.

The Chicago company, in the forefront of radio receiving set production, proposed to take advantage of the department of justice's anti-trust suit against the R. C. A. and other companies associated with it, involving the fundamental radio patent structure. This writer is informed reliably that within the next few weeks the Chicago firm will file a damage suit against these same companies, designed to aid the government in its suit and to release it and about 30 other radio manufacturers from the 7 1/2 per cent royalty on gross receipts they now pay the R. C. A. for use of its patents.

Former Senator Reed was retained by Grigsby-Grunow for the solitary purpose of waging its "trust-busting" battle.

DROPS GROUP

Efforts to align with it the organized Radio industry, through the Radio Manufacturers association, in this conflict proved futile and resulted in spirited exchanges between executives of the association and the company and the withdrawal of Grigsby-Grunow from the association.

The former Missouri senator, famed as an orator, will endeavor to invade the anti-trust suit against the R. C. A. before the senate interstate commerce committee.

Wilmington, Del., on May 13. Technically, reply briefs were due within 30 days from the respondent companies which were incorporated in that state. Other identical actions incorporated in other states were brought subsequently, however, and the understanding is that the reply briefs will not be filed until July 1.

There may be some preliminary argument in the case presented during the summer, but the actual proceedings are not expected until next fall. Whether the case will be tried before Judge Hugh M. Morris, who rendered the decision adverse to the R. C. A. in the celebrated vacuum tube litigation, depends on action of the justice department. Judge Morris submitted his resignation to President Hoover recently, but at the request of Senator Dill of Washington, the president has referred the resignation to the department. Senator Dill asked that Judge Morris be requested to reconsider.

Besides the R. C. A., the anti-trust suit of the government is directed against General Electric Co., American Telephone and Telegraph Company, Western Electric Co., Westinghouse, RCA, Phonograph RCA Radiotron Co., RCA Victor Co., General Motors, Radio Corporation and General Motors Corporation.

REED ANSWERS JINGOISM

Senator David A. Reed of Pennsylvania, member of the American delegation to the London conference, in a radio speech has answered the attacks of Senator Johnson on the navy limitation treaty. Senator Reed's summary of the argument is worth repeating. What he says may be ridiculed by or it may be incomprehensible to the big navy crowd, but it is unanswerable as an expression of sound state policy. The treaty, as Mr. Reed points out, removes competition in naval construction among the three leading powers of the world, and in every category of ship. To quote the senator:

It gives all three countries a holiday from battleship building during the next seven years and saves the taxpayers of the United States an outlay of $400,000,000 on battleship replacements alone. It allows the people of these three great nations to rest secure in the knowledge that no one of the three can be attacked in its home waters by any navy on earth. It makes it plain to all the world that none of the three countries is designing a war upon either of the others. It promotes to an important degree the international friendship that we all desire.

Referring to the attempts to defeat the treaty Mr. Reed said:

It is opposed in each of the three countries by the big navy party of that country. The same things that were said to you by Senator Johnson last night are being said in London by Admiral Jellicoe, Lord Bridgeman and Mr. Winston Churchill. The same things are being said in Tokyo by Admiral Kato and his cabinet. In each of the three countries the same clamor is arising, but in each of the three I am confident that common sense will prevail and that the treaty will be ratified.

The whole controversy in this country hinges on the question whether three of our cruisers would be better equipped with eight-inch than with six-inch guns. It is a ridiculous dispute. As Mr. Reed says: "If there ever was a tempest in a teapot it would seem to be here. The idea is preposterous that a great step forward in the cause of world peace should be rejected because of a disagreement as to the caliber of the guns to be placed on three ships out of our great fleet."

That is the situation in a nutshell, and it is a proposition any layman can comprehend without being misled by the involved technical discussions of so-called experts. Furthermore, Senator Reed declares, there has never been a naval battle in the world's history at a range of more than 20,000 yards, while "American experts on ordinance and gunnery have advised us without hesitation that under 20,000 yards the six-inch guns have a great advantage because of their greater rapidity of fire."

Six-inch guns have been fired in battle practice as rapidly as 11 shots per minute, while the eight-inch gun, which is machine loaded, cannot be fired faster than two shots per minute. It will thus be seen that there are two sides to the dispute over gun caliber, but it is manifestly silly to say that the efficiency of the entire navy, with its great fighting strength in all categories, is seriously affected one way or the other by the placing of either six or eight-inch guns on three cruisers.

Finally, Mr. Reed recalls that this is not the first time it has been necessary for the statesmen to disagree with the naval general board. At the Washington conference in 1922 the board demanded a minimum of a million tons of battleships for the American navy, but was finally compelled to be content with 525,000 tons. Today that demand is thoroughly discredited and we have now reached the time when battleship tonnage is going to decrease and may disappear altogether. All of which leads to the conclusion that propaganda against the London treaty is the height of prejudice, inconsistency and jingoism.

JONES WINS AGAIN

Bobby Jones again distinguished himself in England by winning the Welsh open championship for the first time. To do this he defeated one of the best players ever assembled.

for this great event. Just previous to the tournament he won the British amateur championship for the first time. Having won all there is in America to win Jones stands as the unquestioned peer of all golfers. There has never been his equal in the history of the game. The other Americans were tied for second place in the British open, far ahead of the rest of the field, so that this country carried off all the honors of the tournament.

Year by year Americans are adding to their laurels in all sports against the world. Evidently the youth of the country is not deteriorating as some would have us believe. The fact that we excel in international competition in athletics and games of every sort is a more important commentary on the tendencies of American youth than volumes of academic discussion. The phenomena affords an excellent subject for our psychologists and sociologists.

COMMUTING PROBLEMS

The Literary Digest assembles a handful of comment under the telling title, "The Rise of the Commuters." It is a picture, drawn by newspapers, of the growth of suburbs while the parent cities themselves often dwindle. Great numbers of city folk use the city only as a place of business or livelihood. They spend their working hours there, and some of their recreation hours, but do their real living outside of the congestion and hubbub.

This is perhaps the most pronounced migratory movement in America today. It certainly looks like a wave of migration when the suburbanites are moving cityward in the morning and homeward again in the evening. The permanent effects are bound to be great. As for the "commuting," it is mostly of a new sort. The modern suburbanite, instead of buying a monthly railroad ticket and riding in a dinky coach, commutes mostly in his automobile. Street car companies lose patronage, and there is far less bidding for it by the railroads than might be expected, because many of the lines say that commuting traffic doesn't pay.

This situation may change. There is doubtless some limit to the number of automobiles that can be packed into a city during working hours. Motor commuting is expensive and grows more difficult. The electric and steam lines may yet find a big opportunity in handling such traffic.

OVER-PRODUCTION

There is general talk of "over-production." Lately satisfaction is expressed that the "surplus" is being slowly "worked off" and a demand is developing which will enable industry before many months to return to "normal production." It may look on the surface of things as if this old theory of the market for goods being periodical-ly fed up and then having to be starved out till it develops a new appetite were sound. But is it? The question was put to the professor of economics in a leading American college. He replied:

Generally speaking, there is no such thing as overproduction. There is over-production, no doubt, of this or that commodity, in this or that industry. There may be produced considerably more of certain things than the market can readily absorb at certain times and places. But it should not be said that industry as a whole ever produces more of things in general than the market as a whole could absorb, provided there were proper industrial management.

We often make too much of one thing and too little of another. All of the industrial capacity could be used continuously if it were regulated and adjusted with a view to the market as a whole. Industrial capacity, industrial capital and labor, should be shifted from one place or one type of production to another, as the situation requires. If this were done, the system would continue operating, because people always want things and never have enough.

Industrial management in the future will doubtless concern itself more with this problem than it has in the past.

PENN'S TREATY

On June 23, 1683, William Penn, founder of Pennsylvania, who came to this country from England to "found a free and virtuous state, in which the people should rule themselves," signed a treaty with the Indians at Shackamaxon which insured a lasting friendship with them. Penn, an ardent Quaker, had obtained from the king an extensive tract of land in America in lieu of a claim of 16,000 pounds against the government which he had inherited from his father. This territory, which, in the royal patent, was called Pennsylvania, Penn resolved to make a home for his co-religionists.

Soon after arriving in America Penn took possession of the territory and laid out a site for a new capital, which he named Philadelphia. A short time later he made his treaty with the Indians, a move which spared the Quaker settlers the horrors of Indian warfare which befell some of the other American settlements.

Not only Quakers, but persecuted members of other religious sects, soon sought refuge in Penn's new colony, where from the first, the principle of toleration was established by law. The settlement made such progress that when Penn returned to England in 1684, he left behind him a prosperous colony of 1,000 inhabitants.

WHAT, LET A WORKING MAN CHOOSE HIS OWN DOCTOR?

News item tells how doctors clashed at a legislative hearing on a bill that would permit injured workmen to choose their own doctors. Employers prefer to have doctors of their selection take care of injured workmen under state compensation law. Let us see what the doctors' club had to say.

Under a compensation law there is of course a certain temptation to a small class of low grade men to malingering when the prospect of a compensation is good. Employers or their agents argue that specialists in industrial practice—whatever they may be—can give injured workmen better treatment than ordinary doctors can. Of course employers would never think of ringing in any little pet medical tyros or giving the plant job to the low bidder who has found it impossible to get along in private practice. Workmen will understand that. Robots will not. An "industrial specialist" is any doctor who gets a job as plant physician.

A strong argument put forward by the agents or lawyers of the employers' union or association at the hearing was that if the injured workman were permitted to select his own physician he might pick some ordinary doctor, say one licensed by the state to practice medicine and surgery but still not in the social swim perhaps, and then, should the case require an operation in a hospital where the well known medical oligarchy has control—you know, the American College of Surgeons—it might happen that the big F.A.C.S. boys on the staff would not consent to let the ordinary doctor treat his patient in their very exclusive institution, so the poor workman would be outa luck.

This argument made one of the ordinary doctors present at the hearing gag a bit. He remarked that a sick man recovers best under the care of the doctor in whom he has confidence. Another ordinary doctor, not a cotton leader, observed that—

"It isn't always because of extraordinary ability and skill that physicians are designated by employers or insurance carriers to treat injured workmen. The thing that counts is the financial consideration. They pick whoever will contract to treat patients at the cheapest rate."

Sometimes the doctor the employer picks is one of the best. Nevertheless, it is depressing to think that the American workman or even the workman in America, should be so subject as to accept meekly the doctor the plant chooses if he has a doctor of his own he prefers.

It is, to my mind, a scandalous thing that a legislative hearing should be necessary to settle such a question. That sort of policy of business and government would make me so red and be red if I were a workman.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS
This Mother Knows How to Handle Baby

I wonder if all mothers who read your articles know how to clear out a young baby's nose. My baby was so "stopped up" he could scarcely breathe. I laid him on his stomach, head lowered, and let him have a good cry. Then I let him go to sleep in that position. It surely worked well. In the morning his pillow slip needed changing badly. I believe it saved his life. I have since tried it with our other three children and it always a great relief. (Mrs. A. L.)

Answer—It is a good, sensible, scientific way to help a baby, or for that matter an adult, when the nose, throat or chest is "stopped up." Persons who suffer with bronchitis or related conditions often find much relief by occupying such a position even for a short time; or better, leaning out of bed with the hands and arms resting on the floor, for several minutes on awakening in the morning.

Algebra More Difficult Than Cockroaches

As a constant reader I surely appreciate your column. You instructed me how to get rid of roaches. I followed directions and in a week not one was left. As an ex-teacher I heartily agree with you in the proposal to "kick algebra out of the public schools and give future citizens some education in the care and feeding of babies." (F. M.)

Answer—Of the two evils I think algebra is the worse, the roaches are more readily exterminated.

The Poor Baby

I have a baby girl 9 months old, fat and strong-appearing. I feed her only breast milk, arrowroot biscuit and orange juice once a day. Should I give her anything else as long as I continue to nurse her? (O. J. A.)

Answer—Yes, she should have a bottle of milk daily, or better a feeding of milk from cup. Then when it comes time to wean her, in another month, you will have no trouble—just one more bottle or cup feeding and one less breast feeding daily, so that it is all over in a week. The baby should begin to take the pulp of stewed fruit or vegetables now.

Send a stamped envelope bearing your address and ask for instructions for weaning and feeding the baby. The arrowroot biscuit and orange juice are all right. Other fresh fruit juice and tomato juice (fresh or factory canned tomato) may be used instead, and some such fresh fruit juice should be given every baby from the age of 3 months or earlier, daily. The pulp of ripe banana (raw) is an excellent thing to feed a young infant, especially where there is malnutrition and the constipation of underfeeding.

The Tynmites

By Hal Cochran

THE camp the Tynmites joined was great. At supper time the whole bunch ate a meal out of the open, by a great big blazing fire. The Tynmites helped in gathering wood. In fact all did the best they could. It was a very pretty sight. The flames shot higher and higher.

Cried Coppy, "Mersey, me, oh my! Just see how we light up the sky. It makes it seem almost like day because everything is so bright. Now let's begin to cook our meal. Hand me potatoes I can peel. I'll work real hard to do my share and it won't be in vain."

"Oh, no!" a camper promptly cried. "We'll throw potatoes right inside the burning embers with the skins right on, the way they are. But, if you want to help, please go and get some water. Don't be slow. Just take it from a little spring that isn't very far."

So, while the rest cooked this and that, wee Coppy quickly grabbed his hat and ran to do his errand. Then they all sat down to eat. The meal was finished. Someone said, "Well, now we'll all turn in to bed. It wasn't long until the bunch were sound in slumber sweet."

When morning came they all arose and Scouty said, "Well, goodness knows that we have had a wondrous time. Now back to town we're bound. There still are sights that we must see and we're as anxious as can be to get back into Len- ingrad today and look around."

When back in town, they promptly went down to the docks and there they spent a very pleasant hour or two. "Course, there was much to see. A great big boat swung up right near and Clowny shouted, 'Oh, look here! They're bringing watermelons and the boat's filled to the top.'"

A BYSTANDER IN WASHINGTON

BY HERBERT PLUMMER

Washington—Presenting one of the plutocrats of the United States senate (that one time "millionaire's club"):

LAWRENCE COWLE PHIPPS
Some say he has 30 millions, others 40 millions, still others 50 millions. Gossip was that he dropped a large sized fortune in the recent stock crash and didn't miss it.

In Washington he lives in a beautiful home in the northwest section known as "Single Oak." Josephus Daniels lived there when he served in Woodrow Wilson's cabinet as secretary of the navy.

He also has a home in Denver, a mountain place in the Rockies and an estate in Los Angeles.

In Washington he moves in the most exclusive society, as elsewhere. He entertains frequently and well.

SPEAKS RARELY

He is not heard often in the senate. He likes to sit at his desk on the front row of the republican side of the chamber and listen. Rarely is he lured into debate.

He prepares his set speeches with great care and reads them from a manuscript. His voice is not strong and always much the same in tone. For this reason his audiences are small.

He has few of the characteristics of a politician. Personal publicity he dislikes. Newspapers find him hard to talk to. He prefers that they leave him alone.

He is not interested in any particular legislation to the point of it being his hobby. As chairman of the senate postoffice committee his activities are confined largely to this field.

Toward his colleagues he is reserved and dignified. Never do you hear him referred to as "Larry" by them or any one else. Yet he greets them with a merry sort of a smile and with twinkling eyes.

PAL OF DAVE REED

His closest friends in the senate are Dave Reed, George Moses and Hiram Bingham. With the former he is the most intimate.

Together they own a speedboat which they run up and down the Potomac river on fishing trips and duck shoots.

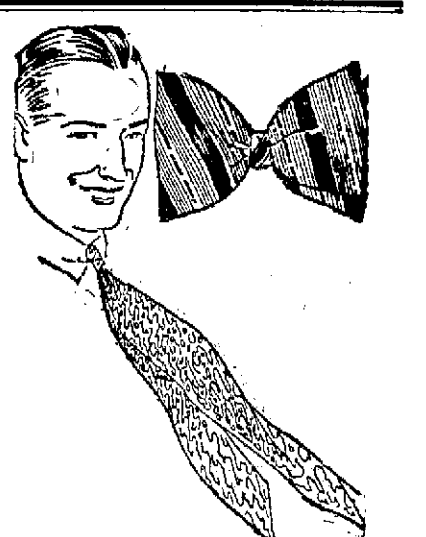

A limousine with a uniformed chauffeur carries him from "Single Oak" to the senate and back every day.

He is one of the best dressed men in the senate. His taste in suits runs to grays and brown mixtures.

He has white hair and an almost white mustache. He is of medium height, a bit rotund.

He plays cards in serious fashion. He holds membership in 14 clubs—six in Denver, four in New York and four in Washington.

This is his last year in the senate. Several months ago he announced his intention of retiring from politics to private life. He would have come up for reelection again this fall.

SEEK SOLUTION TO PROBLEM OF TRAFFIC TIEUP

Street Railway Men to Demand Showdown; Want Parking Eliminated

BY J. C. ROYLE (Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press) Washington (CPA)—The electric street railroads of the country are prepared to call for a showdown on the street traffic congestion situation. This was learned today from executives of the companies who are now making their way toward San Francisco, where the American Electric Railway association will meet Monday.

The situation affects every city and hamlet in the country, as well as the street car lines, which operate some 80 per cent of the urban public utility transportation of the country. Downtown parking is the foremost problem. The street car men say the time has come when streets can no longer be used for motor car storage. They are advocating free movement for all vehicles. This question has threatened to stir up a controversy in President Hoover's street and highway safety conference, but it has never been discussed so openly and frankly as it will be at San Francisco.

Arranged on one side are the city planners and public transportation men. They insist all streets should be used only for moving traffic. On the other side are the motor car men and many of the merchants.

OPPOSE PLAN
The first group asserts that the cost of new streets and widening old thoroughfares should not be placed on tax-payers until existing streets are used to capacity for moving traffic.

They insist that the whole problem should be based on a city planning basis, which figure largely in the production of congestion should be taken into consideration. They cite highway accident records as an argument against haphazard traffic control. While auto accidents have increased, street car fatalities have dropped until last year only one passenger in 300,000,000 was fatally injured.

The electric railway and bus men argue that since they carry three passengers to every one carried by private autos and carry them more safely, they are entitled to clear headway in the streets.

The second group does not see eye to eye with the street car and bus men. Automobile men say they are doing everything possible to prevent accidents. They say that parking space is not available at curbs, the cities should build downtown garages and provide free parking service. Street widening and the building of new streets are inevitable, they declare.

SEE POOR TRADE
Many merchants believe abolition of street parking would hurt their trade. They would rather see one car parked before a store than a dozen rolling past, despite assertions that Chicago merchants have found abolition of parking a help to trade. A Chicago survey showed 1.06 per cent of trade came from parkers.

What the electric railway and city planning groups would like to see is a broad, impartial study of traffic congestion by a national body particularly interested in city planning. At the last meeting of the Hoover conference on street and highway safety, the automobile men suggested leaving the solution of the problem to the highway bureau of the department of agriculture. The street car men objected on the ground that this would give an urban job to a body specially concerned with rural problems. The matter was left open. It is possible that a definite demand may come from the San Francisco meeting for a national study of traffic congestion.

Lindberghs Have Heir

Appleton Youth Achieves Success In Ventriloquism

A determination to do what he had seen another do, a small, homemade doll constructed out of a tin can and a mask, and a lot of practice, started Robert Neller, 410 E. Washington-st., Appleton, toward the marked success he has attained in the art of ventriloquism.

While in the eighth grade, "Bob" was present at a ventriloquist's performance, and believing that he could achieve the same effect, he hurried home and up to his room to practice. Soon he rigged up a doll, the earliest ancestor to the present, well-known "Izzy", and performed for his school mates. They enjoyed it so well that he was asked to appear before a Parent-Teacher meeting.

The next year, while a freshman at the high school, he purchased "Izzy" who can move his jaw, eyebrows, and can pucker his lips to whistle. From that time on Bob and "Izzy" have become familiar and entertaining figures appearing before many organizations in and about Appleton. While studying at the university of Wisconsin, the team has been enjoyed by countless collegiate and Capital city groups.

Co-ordination of facial muscles, and the ability to pronounce the vowels without appreciable movement of the lips, is the first requirement to the mastery of the art, according to Neller. On the origination and practice of the art he says: "The word ventriloquism is derived from two Latin words, 'venter,' the belly, and 'liquor,' to say or speak. This name is, in a sense, not well chosen because the actual sound does not come from the stomach; it comes from the back of the throat and, of course, can not originate below the vocal chords.

"Even more of an interesting than the actual method of doing ventriloquism is the early history of this deceptive art of sound illusion. Back as far as the days of Egypt, Darius Hystaspes made his subjects worship him as a god by his thunder illusion in the labyrinth. Though this deception was not through his voice, he substituted other sounds to frighten his people. This was the beginning of the use of sound deception.

"Among the early 'speaking and singing heads' was Orpheus, a mechanical god's head which uttered response as an oracle at Lesbes. Another speaking head was owned by the ancient Odin, magician of the north, who had the head supposed of sage Mimes.

Odin made the people believe that the head was a God and scared them into obeying him. About the year 1000 A. D. the noted mechanic Gerhart, under the name of Sylvester II, was pope at the time; constructed a brass head which also had the ability to talk.

"Later in the history of sound illusion, an amusing incident happened at the court of Charles II. Thomas Irson completely fooled the people with a speaking figure. He would whisper a question in its ear in most any language, and these questions would be answered in the same tongue. After he had become quite famed in this illusion, a rare boy discovered that a learned priest had been speaking through a hollow tube to cause this effect.

"From time to time in history, ventriloquism has been used as a trickery for both amusement and actual gain. Such was the case of Louis Brabant, chamber valet of Francis I. He loved a rich heiress but was of too low a rank to marry her. After the death of her father he visited the widow. This evening she heard herself being spoken to by a voice resembling that of her husband. "Give my daughter to Louis Brabant, who is a man of great fortune and excellent character. I now endure the inexpressible torments of Purgatory for having refused her to him; obey this admonition and I shall soon be delivered."

Brabant must have perfected the art to such a degree that his face seemed perfectly relaxed while he was speaking or his daring experiment would have failed. Later Louis Brabant secured ten thousand crowns by a similar deception on a rich baron. He used part of this money for his marriage trip to Paris.

"A man who enjoyed fooling people for personal amusement rather than money was M. St. Gille. From the reports of several write ups he must have been a master of the art; his vocal control must have been nearly supernatural. One time he went into a concert to seek and ter from a storm. There he found a group of religious people mourning over the death of one of their brothers. M. St. Gille learned some facts about the corpse and before long a voice was heard emanating from the top of the choir loft. The voice complained that the people had not honored him enough and that they should pray so that he would get out of Purgatory. The whole community met at the church, bowed down and vowed a solemn reparation. They even chanted a De Profundis in full choir. The voice would express contentment now and then throughout the service. M. St. Gille tried to explain it to the fathers, but they refused to believe him for quite some time."

"The actual possibilities of this art are more limited than one would expect. For instance, it is impossible to throw the voice to any position over the audience's heads. All ventriloquists have been asked to do absolutely impossible stunts. As Olin says,

"I have never yet heard of a ventriloquist being requested to throw his voice to the next county, but undoubtedly there are persons who think he might do so if he wished.

"The well known drinking water trick is a farce. Anyone who understands the construction of the throat can confirm this fact. Concerning this, Mason says,

"It is impossible to drink and speak at the same time, although I always give such an impression.

"As absurd as expecting a ventriloquist to drink or eat while the doll is talking is expecting him to make the doll talk while someone else is holding it. Often I've had people pick up my doll, hold it in their arms and expect me to make it sound as if it were talking while I was across the room. Mason makes the statement,

"The least mistake arising from the change of voice, the effect of the spell is lost and the operator may return his attention to his chest until he gets a fresh group of spectators.

"From my experience I've learned and am certain, that this statement is absolutely false. I can make any mistake named and immediately continue with full effect. As a whole, Mason's book has excellent material in spite of the fact that now and then there is a minor error.

"Most books today are not made up by men who know the game. Often times mention of the difficulty in pronouncing the letters b, p, m, v or f, are completely omitted. This is one of the hardest tasks a ventriloquist has to overcome.

"The old type of ventriloquism of Odin, M. St. Gille, Brabant and many others, was done purely for deception. They actually tried to make the people believe that their type of automation was speaking. It could be done in their day, but today the world is educated to understand, at least, that the voice can be made to appear as if it is coming from other places than the ventriloquist's mouth. Therefore, Lester and Prince, of today with the other modern ventriloquists, strive to make the dummy an individual character and to amuse the audience rather than to fool them."

NO BAND CONCERT TUESDAY EVENING

Decline Puts Issues on a Better Paying Basis; U. S. in Forefront

BY CHARLES F. SPEARE Copyright, 1930, by Cons. Press New York (CPA)—The decline in public utility stocks this week has brought the power and light industry up for review. Today 20 representative common stocks of public utility companies quoted on the New York Stock exchange and the Curb exchange stand at about an average of $2.54, or 31 points below the high of the year and 71 points below the 1929 high.

At current levels the utilities are quoted approximately on a basis of 17 1/2 times earnings, which is much more reasonable than the high level of the year, when they were priced at 21 1/2 times earnings, or the high of 1929 when they were more than 32 times earnings.

During last autumn's panic the average of these 20 utility stocks declined to 63.74, or 15 1/2 times earnings. That was regarded as commensurate with earnings, which averaged 4.73 per cent. On these 20 stocks the actual dividends paid averaged 3.32.

The slight increase which electrical output for the first quarter of this year showed over 1929 has been cancelled by later decreases. The index stands at 88 today compared with 93.3 a year ago.

GOOD COMPARISON

However, the computed curve of electric power production is adjusted for long time trend and so, though the curve dips down to new low levels in April, May and June, actually the production compares favorably with that of 1929. Such a comparison gains significance when it is remembered that the figures for the same period of 1929 represented a time when industry's great spurt placed demands on the utilities they could hardly satisfy. Revenue per kilowatt hour was 6.10 cents in the year ended March 31, 1922, compared with 6.08 cents in the year ended March 31, 1930.

Preferred stocks and bonds of the utility companies have proved strong favorites at a time when it was precarious to invest money in equities. The average yield today on such securities is about 4.67 per cent for the highest grade, 4.55 for second grade, 5.19 for second and 5.95 per cent for merely "good" issues.

In the first five months of 1930 public utilities put out a total of $1,628,158,761 of new issues, of which $1,556,455,251 was new capital. This compared with a total of $1,524,002,497 for all other corporate financing in the United States during the same five months. The total of utility financing in 1929 was $1,214,576,546, of which $915,548,450 was new capital.

MORE THIS YEAR

The total of stocks floated in first five months of this year was $588,156,761, practically all new capital, against $565,622,040 in the same 1929 period.

In a survey of world development of electric light and power conducted by Lynchon & Company, world production of electrical power is placed at the present time at 300,000,000,000 kilowatt hours, or roughly 400,000,000,000 horsepower hours. On this basis the United States is generating 41 per cent of the total. Germany ranks second with 11 per cent and Canada third with 6 per cent.

The Princeton survey estimates the power investment in the United States to exceed $11,000,000,000 and the world total to be $25,000,000,000. The world's annual power and light bill is placed at $3,000,000,000. This puts the industry in front rank in point of wealth and potential resources.

Most of the electrical expansion abroad is being financed in the United States, the current investment being estimated in excess of $800,000,000. The world depends largely on the United States for electrical products, with a record total of $150,000,000,000 of such products exported in 1929. The same exports for the early months of this year are running ahead of even that record year.

CAR DEALERS FACE SEASONAL DECLINE

Expect Industry Will Let Down During Vacation Period, Which Is Starting

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent Detroit (CPA)—The question now confronting automobile manufacturers and stockholders is not how well business is going to keep up, but how it is going to recede due to seasonal let-up of operations. The vacation period has begun and from now until Sept. 1 is likely to show its effect on virtually all plants in the industry. The prescribed period of lay-off in nearly all instances is two weeks, but unavoidable delays incidental to closing off and then resuming output are likely to retard the flow of cars from production lines to a greater degree than in normal years.

That thus far the industry as a whole has been able to maintain approximately 70 per cent of the peak volume of last year is regarded as phenomenal, in view of general business conditions. It has allowed the makers to keep things going on a steady, although reduced basis, with out the usual price cutting and turmoil which have marked other depression periods. The slack-up period now in progress will bring it with factory

Spanish War Vets Order Of Serpents To Meet Here

One of the features of the thirty-first annual convention of the United Spanish American War Veterans of Wisconsin, which will be held here Thursday, Friday and Saturday, will be the initiation and parade of the Military Order of Serpents. This is a social order of the war veterans association.

The parade, which will take place at 5 o'clock Friday evening, will be held on College-ave. Costumes of Filipinos will be worn by the members of the secret order.

Theodore A. Schneider, Milwaukee, is the Grand Gu Gu Grandissimo of this order. E. W. Simmons, Milwaukee, is the Grand Thrice Infamous Inferior Gu Gu while Albert E. Gale, Milwaukee, is the grand lord high keeper of the sacred amphi-phora. Other officers are:

Louis Jeske, Appleton, grand duto; W. H. Holman, Stevens Point; W. V. Smith, Oshkosh; Henry Yanko, Fond du Lac; and Frank Crane, Beaver Dam, grand slock and slimy keepers of the opihidion.

Headquarters of the grand fair of this order are at Milwaukee. J. Merrill fair, No. 10, is located in Appleton. Officers of this fair are: G. G.

economies that in the end will prove constructive. Executive salaries that remained inflated from the high pressure competition of the last two years have undergone the slicing process, and much useless overhead in the way of sales promotion expenses is being eliminated. The belief is that it will never come back, or if anything like it does, it will be on a basis of practical necessity. With this will come drastic reduction of over-expanded distribution.

G. Louis Jeske; Datto, Clarence Dierman; T. I. I. G. G. Albert Hecht; L. H. K. S. A. Richard Sykes; keepers of the opihidion and Joseph Hlassman, First Oshkosh, Danton and William Buske. Other members of the Appleton fair are Aaron Zorbel, Joseph Forster, Ferdinand Radtke, Emil Hoffman, Henry Stegert, August Petran, Thomas Thomson, Marcus Steinhauer, William Buske, W. H. Zuckler, and John Fortel.

The order, admitted to be a burlesque, is modeled after the famous Filipino Katipunan, an organization whose origin is lost in the obscurity of the past but its history can be traced back several centuries. Originally its purpose was to resist the oppression of Spain and there never has been any particular change in its bloodthirsty intent except in the object of its hatred. The Military Order of the Serpent has its counterpart in the word ceremonies of the original Katipuna.

Initiations into the order are made dramatically by costumes following the styles and fashions of Tagalog, Moro and Visayan tribes of the Philippines. The Serpent, which contains much original fun and many lessons, teaches a lesson in loyalty, fidelity, willingness and charity. The badge of the order is a Filipino cross, bearing the arms of the United Service, together with the Katipuna suspended from a sash and jet ribbon.

Since its incorporation in 1907, the order has enjoyed a healthy growth, and today the time and influence of the tiny serpent born in Cleveland 23 years ago, almost circles the globe.

At the final meeting of creditors at Oshkosh all undisposed property will be sold.

STEEL PRODUCTION HAS SHOWN STEADY DROP FOR MONTHS

Lowering Activity Comes Despite Continued Activity in Other Industries

Special Dispatch to Post-Crescent
Pittsburgh.—(CPA)—It is a curious and striking thing that those lines of steel consumption that can be observed in detail have pursued what may be considered their usual or normal seasonal course, while steel production has not.

Steel production rose sharply in the first two months of the year and then began declining, much earlier than usual. Suspensions are raised that steel buyers were too sanguine and purchased more steel than they were going to need, also perhaps that steel mills were more prompt than necessary in filling the orders.

Steel ingot production this week may be estimated at 65 per cent of capacity. The official report showed 44.88 per cent for February and thus there is a drop of nearly 20 per cent to date, while it is easy to guess with the present declining trend, that a 60 per cent rate is going to be reached within a few weeks.

Steel manufacturers are now predicting a decided improvement in steel conditions by Sept. 1 if not sooner. They may have observed liquidation in process, nearly completed by the present time. There is of course the support of precedent to predictions of a revival in steel some weeks after the mid-year date. The exceptions tend to test the rule, being in years of progressive decrease in general activity.

Just now there are some finished steel products which are steady in price and reasonably afford a very substantial profit. There are others that are fairly steady in price and are claimed to be affording little or no profit. There are others which at full quoted prices would be quite profitable, but which have been shaded so deeply that the general average is pulled down and prospect is plain that an open readjustment will have to occur, possibly putting prices much lower than those now regarded as the market basis, if only the basis for shading or cutting purposes.

In the first category are rails, pipe and tin plate, in the second strips, wire products and sheets, and in the third, bars, shapes and plates.

REP. SCHNEIDER TO SPEAK IN BROWN-CO

Will Address Farmer's Union at Hollandtown—Praises Organization

BY RUBY A. BLACK
Post-Crescent Washington Correspondent

Washington.—Rep. George J. Schneider has accepted an invitation to address the organization picnic of the Farmers' Union at Hollandtown, in Brown county, on July 13.

The invitation in behalf of the union was transmitted to the congressman by the Rev. V. F. X. Van Nistelrooy of St. Francis Seraph's congregation, near Kaukauna. In his letter, Rev. Van Nistelrooy said that the union unanimously requested him to invite Rep. Schneider to make the address.

"We want a greater membership and know of few men who are better able to tell them about the necessity for organization than you," Rev. Nistelrooy wrote.

In accepting the invitation, Rep. Schneider said:

"Nothing will give me greater pleasure than to accept your invitation particularly on such a mission as this.

"I have been watching with great interest the work you have been doing in bringing the farming people together in an effort to effectively and profitably market their eggs. This is a great work and I sincerely hope that they will see the wisdom of acting in unison in all matters."

DRIVER FINED FOR DISORDERLY CONDUCT

Raymond Retzlaff, route 4, Appleton was fined $10 and costs by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court Monday morning when he pleaded guilty of disorderly conduct. He was arrested Saturday evening after he used profane language to Officer Walter Hendricks, who was directing traffic at the corner of Morrison and College-ave.

Retzlaff's machine was slightly damaged when he drove away from the curb on Washington street in front of the police station and collided with a car driven by E. J. Ostman, 1310 N. Alvin, who was going west on Washington. Fenders on both machines were damaged.

15 BOYS LEARN TO SWIM AT "Y" POOL

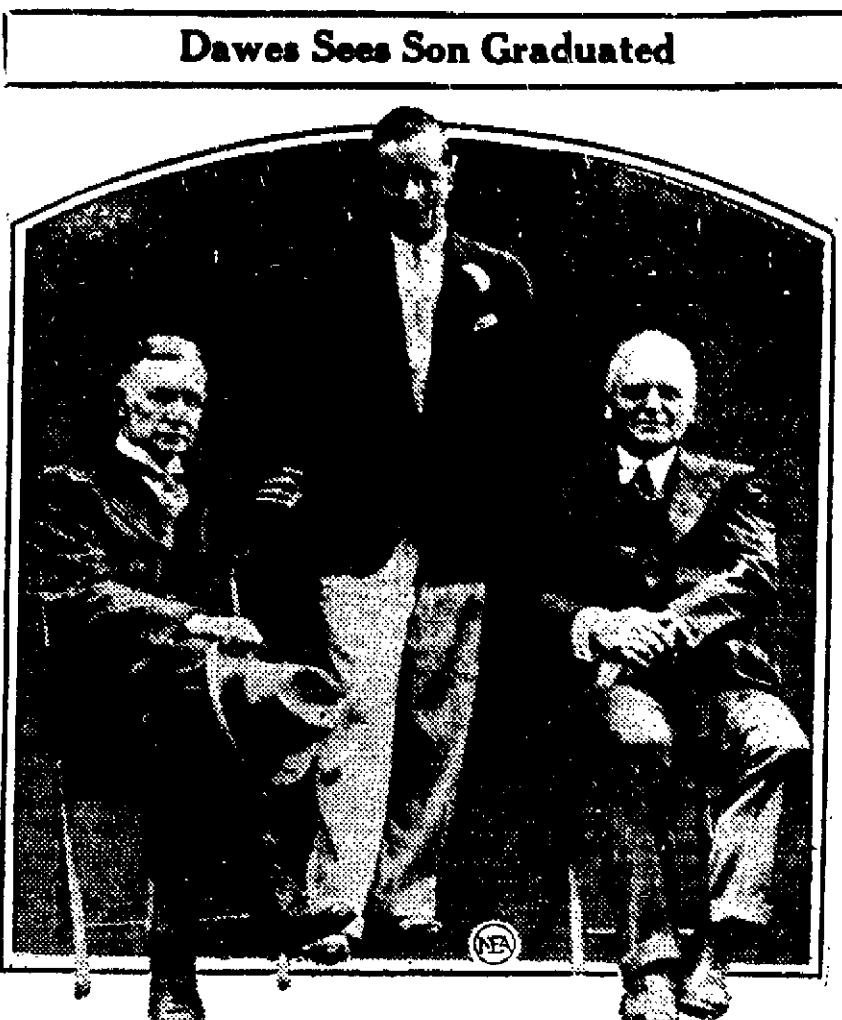

More than 25 Appleton boys learned to swim more than the length of the Y. M. C. A. pool as result of the free swimming lessons given at the association during the last two weeks. Another 15 boys learned how to handle themselves in the water and with more practice should soon be swimming with ease. There were about 95 boys in the classes but only 15 attended all the classes.

Swim periods at the Y. M. C. A. will be devoted entirely to members of the association.

COUNTY LEADERS BACK FROM STATE MEETING

Miss Harriet Thompson, county executive demonstration agent, and Gus J. county agent, returned Monday from Madison where they had attended the state 4-H club camp several days last week. Mr. Sell also attended a state conference on cheese problems, called by the state department of agriculture and markets; and also attended the reunion of his university class of 1914.

Ryder Biggest "Sucker" Of All Says Texas Guinan

Copyright, 1930, By Cons. Press
New York.—(CPA)—"The greatest sucker of them all" was Texas Guinan's characterization today of Harold Russell Ryder, partner in the brokerage firm of Woody and Company, whose failure this week has dragged Ryder into a grand jury quest for missing millions.

Ryder's long stroll down Peacock Lane, exiting into the grand jury, was cheered by Broadway butters, and in his wake there were 41,000 bills. His wife, Mrs. E. J. Ryder, was also present, and in the third, Lars, shapes and plates.

It appears that about $7,000,000 was the total of the fight shift cleanings from the chivalrous and playful young Mr. Ryder. If there is some, where a Broadway waiter who did not get a $100 tip from Ryder, or a chorus girl who missed her bouquet of orchids, it was just an oversight. Ryder tried to remember them all.

Oddly enough, a gift of $100,000 to Union College, at Schenectady, which Ryder did not attend, is included in the young man's benefactions to all corners.

This modern version of "The Rake's Progress" is quite the most dazzling chapter of high stepping and prodigious spending ever recorded in Lit-up here, or probably anywhere else.

SET DATE FOR TRIAL OF HORTONVILLE MEN

The second trial of Lothar and Leonard Dietzler, brothers living at Hortonville, on charges of spearing fish at night, has been set by Judge Theodore Berg in municipal court for Thursday. The pair were tried several months ago and the jury disagreed and was dismissed.

The two Dietzlers were arrested April 10 on warrants issued on complaint of A. Dunham and Royal Ott, special state game wardens assigned to this district during the spring months.

It is charged by the two wardens that they caught the Dietzlers with a light, spears, a boat and over 200 pike on the Wolf river between Hortonville and New London the night before their arrest.

Dunham and Ott were waiting at a narrow pass in the river and when the boat approached they jumped from shore to meet it. Dunham reached the boat where he was struck over the head by a paddle, which it is claimed wounded by Lothar Dietzler. The blow stunned Dunham and the pair escaped before Ott could reach the boat.

The game wardens charge they recognized the two brothers. The Dietzlers claim an alibi for the night when it is charged they were illegally spearing fish.

KIMBERLY — Appleton's fast fielding saved the day when they defeated Kimberly-Little Chute in the sixth inning when they netted four runs to give them a lead they kept until the end of the game.

The big surprise was the fact that the Papermakers for the first time this season out hit their opponents. But the Appleton squad showed plenty of class on the field, making two double plays, while the Papermakers muffed up three chances by wild plays.

Dats Crowe pitched the complete game for the College city. Although he has hit freely his teammates played head up ball to equal many chances that would have meant scores for the Villagers. Vanderloop hurled one of the best games this year for the Kim-Little Chute combination. His curves and slow ball were working perfect and he set down 10 men via the strike out route. Every Appleton man except Smith and Murphy were his victims. Eggert was fanned three times.

Both teams were unable to hit safely in the first inning. When Appleton came to bat in the second Vanderloop showed rare form by striking out the first three men to face him. Kimberly came near scoring in their half the second when Crowe walked Marty Lamers and then Paris and H. Versteegen both hit singles to load the bases with only one out. But Marty Lamers was caught at home when he attempted to score on Hartjes grounder to Kotal. The third man up, Murphy and Leo to Eggert for a neat double play retiring the side.

Crowe came to bat for Appleton in the first half of the third and drove a hit into center field which Lou Paris lost in the loose grass and before he could find it Crowe was safe on third and credited with a triple. Kotal and Smith then fled out and Murphy hit a single to right field scoring Crowe with Appleton's first run. The crowd ended the inning by striking out.

The Papermakers came to bat in their half the third and Vanderloop hit to left field. Skill was safe on a fielder's choice, when Vanderloop was forced out at second. Then B. Versteegen advanced Skill to second by a single. Both men advanced a base when Crowe made a wild pitch. Then hit a long double to center scoring Skill and Versteegen. Both Lamers the next man up hit to Eggert for the second out. Marty Lamers hit a grounder to Kotal for the third out. Vanderloop was feeling right to home on the mound and Kotal and Co. was held scoreless in the fourth and fifth. But in the last half of the fifth, the Villagers again got wise to Crowe and again scored when Skill and T. Versteegen scored when Paris hit a grounder to Kotal who forced out Lamers at second. H. Versteegen ended the inning by fanning the last strike being called.

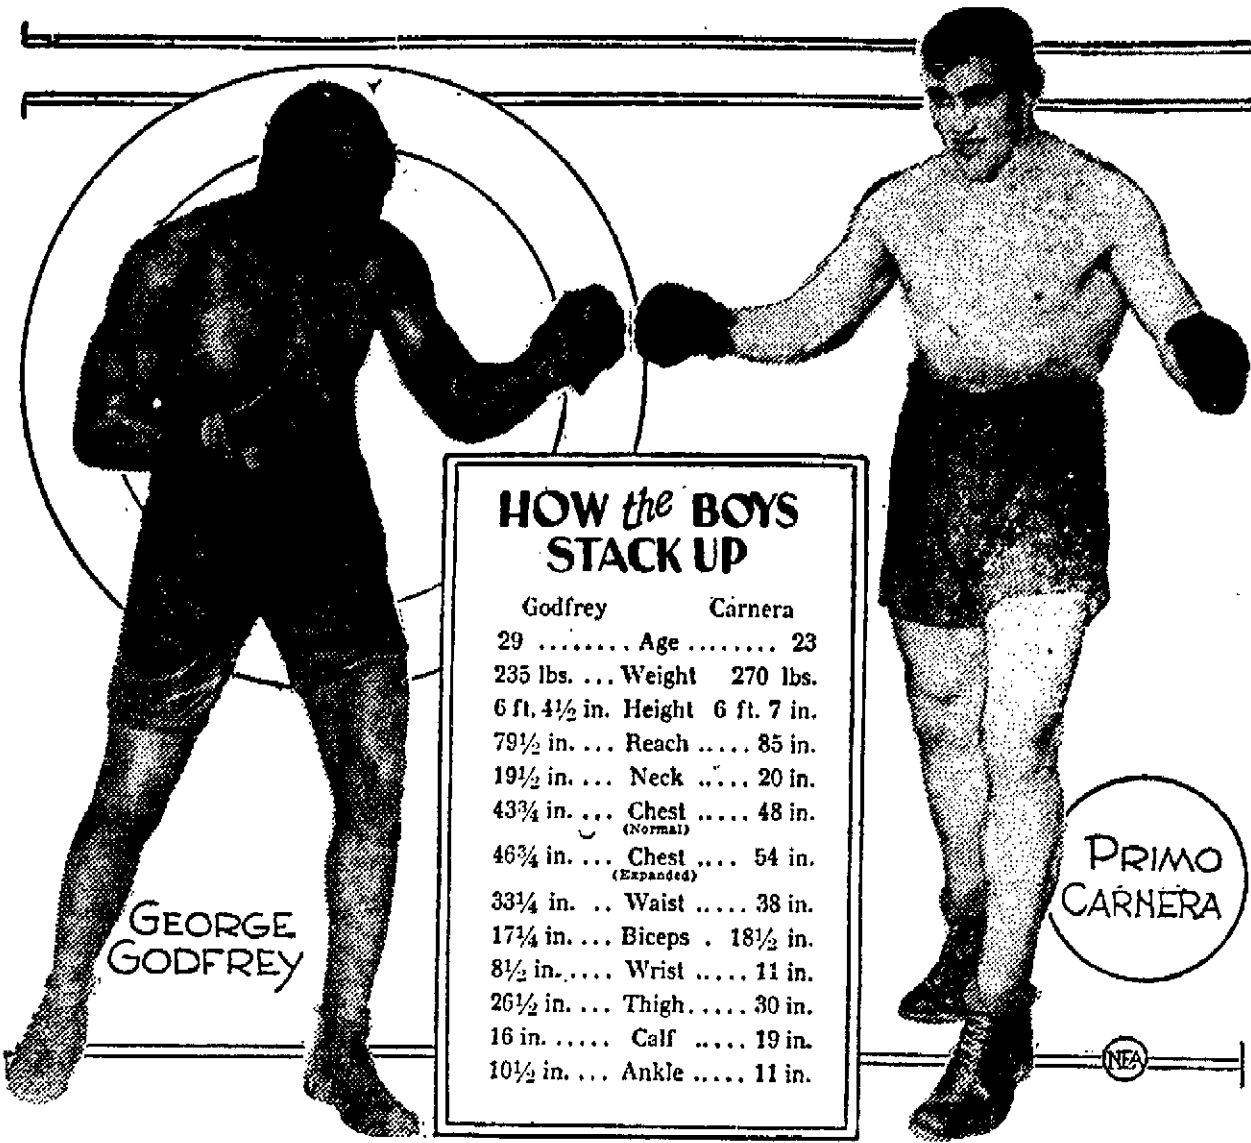

Then came Appleton's big rally in the sixth. Smith the first man up was walked and Murphy got to first on a fielder's choice when Smith was forced out at second. The next man to bat was Sonny Torrow who pulled the Babe Ruth act and hit one over the left field fence for a homer scoring Murphy in front of him. Eggert the next man up singled and Hillman hit a grounder to M. Lamers who forced Eggert at second, but Versteegen in attempting a double play threw wild to first and Hillman romped over to the Keystone sack and scored on Boozie Bowers' single to center.

Schultz reached first when H. Versteegen again threw wild to first. Crowe ended the rally by fanning. Both teams failed to score from then on until the ninth inning when, Boozie Bowers walked and stole both second and third and finally scored on Kotal's single to right field. The Villagers made a last attempt to score in the final frame when, Gossens pinch hit for Skill, and reached under his legs. But Bensen pinch hitting for B. Versteegen hit into a Eggert. Then the next man to bat hit a long fly to Len Smith who gathered it in to end the game, the final score being 6 to 4.

Philadelphia — (P) — Primo Carnera, Italy's challenger for recognition as a first flight heavyweight, meets his biggest and perhaps his most formidable opponent tonight when he fights Godfrey, gigantic Negro of Leipersville, Pa., at the Phillies ball park. The bout is ten rounds.

Sealing 245, the black panther has never traded punches with a ring rival of the bulk of the mauling mastodon of Venice. Carnera, standing six feet seven and weighing 268, will also be facing his biggest foe, none of his long list of quick knock-out victims measuring up to the size of Godfrey.

Godfrey will spot Carnera 23 pounds, five inches in height, two inches in reach and, in the matter of age, about seven years. He claims an advantage in fighting experience and boxing skill, and insists that Primo's American victories were scored over second rate opponents.

"I ought to knock Carnera out in five or six rounds," Godfrey said. "And if I can land a left hook on the button before that Mr. Carnera will be through."

"No man in the world can hit hard enough to knock out Carnera," said Billy Duffy, his American manager. "And if Primo nails Godfrey with that right under the heart, the Negro will fold up."

The fight will be broadcast beginning at 9 p. m. eastern standard time over WCAU and W3XAU.

Butte Des Morts Golf Team In Win Over Bays

BUTTE Des Morts golf team won its first intercity match Saturday by defeating members of the Oneida Golf and Riding club, Green Bay, 68 to 23. The professionals representing the two clubs did not compete because Harley O. Denney of the Bay club was forced to stay at home with a special golf feature on his home course.

Bill and Helen IN TENNIS MEET

Two Yank Stars Are Doped to Win Men's, Women's Singles Titles

Wimbledon, Eng. — (P) — The British tennis championships, opening today, revolve around two American stars, Big Bill Tilden and Helen Mills Moody.

Mrs. Moody became an overwhelming choice with the withdrawal from the singles of two of her strongest rivals, Mrs. Phoebe Watson, who took five straight games from Queen Helen in the Wightman cup matches, and Senorita Elia de Alvarez. Both were forced to scratch their entries on doctor's orders.

Mrs. Moody also is favored to win the women's doubles title with Elizabeth Ryan.

In the men's singles, Tilden is a second choice only to Henri Cochet of France who beat Big Bill in the finals of the French hard court championships recently. The United States is heavily represented in the men's singles with a helping hand for Tilden from George Lott, John Doeg, Wilmer Allison, John Van Ryn, Gregory Mangin and Eugene McLaughlin.

Three youngsters will bolster America's hopes in the women's singles with Sarah and Mianne Palfrey of Boston and Mary Greet of Kansas City ready to aid the two Helens from Berkeley, Calif.

YANK TRACK STARS ON EUROPEAN JAUNT

New York — (P) — Five track and field stars were headed toward Europe and a series of meets abroad today.

Aboard the Berengaria which sailed at midnight were George Bullwinkle of City College of New York, I. C. A. A., one mile champion; Pete Bowen of Pittsburgh, crack quarter miler; Steve Anderson of the University of Washington, hurdler; Ed Hamm of Georgia Tech, broad jump star, and Tommy Warner of Northwestern, pole vaulter.

To tell the truth, whether or not a man's name is etched into the base of this trophy carries no considerable weight as regards a boxer's opinion always has and always will settle such matters.

Whether Schmeling's name will go on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy has not yet been decided. The boxing commission last week accepted Max as champion, but that has nothing to do with the trophy, which is in charge of five trustees, who probably will meet next week.

Max' Name May Never Get On Boxing Trophy

BY WILBUR WOOD Copyright 1930

NEW YORK — When Gene Tunney and William Muldoon decided, upon the former's retirement as heavyweight champion, to establish a trophy emblematic of the title, they wisely determined not to put up a belt, as had been done so often in the past.

Commissioner Muldoon knows, from experience, that such championship belts usually wind up in a rock shop or at least out of the possession of the gladiators to whom they were presented.

The idea still sticks in the minds of many fans, judging from inquiries, that the Tunney-Muldoon trophy is to pass into the possession of the next heavyweight king, to be retained by him until he is dethroned, when it will become the property of his successor.

Such a supposition is far from correct. The past champions whose names are inscribed on the trophy and those whose monickers will be placed on it from time to time in the future have no more of a title to the trophy than the casual customer who surveys it with languid curiosity in the lobby of Madison Square Garden.

To tell the truth, whether or not a man's name is etched into the base of this trophy carries no considerable weight as regards a boxer's opinion always has and always will settle such matters.

Whether Schmeling's name will go on the Tunney-Muldoon trophy has not yet been decided. The boxing commission last week accepted Max as champion, but that has nothing to do with the trophy, which is in charge of five trustees, who probably will meet next week.

Commissioner Muldoon, one of the donors of the trophy, is bitterly opposed to giving Schmeling recognition. While he has no vote, it is understood that at least one of the trustees agrees with him.

One adverse ballot would be enough to keep Schmeling's name off the trophy, as a unanimous vote is required.

WRIGHTSTOWN IN 6 AND 4 VICTORY OVER ATHLETICS

Defeat Was First in Eight Games for Fourth Ward Nine

It's a long road that has no turning, and the corner for the Athletics, Appleton entry in the Little Fox league, came Sunday afternoon and proved to be a mighty sharp one.

In other words the A's lost their first league game Sunday after going seven straight weeks without tasting defeat. The winning club was the Wrightstown entry in the loop and the score was 6 and 4. The defeat does not affect the standings, however, for the Athletics still are a long way out in front.

Brautigan started hurling for the A's but gave way to Sternagle in the sixth inning, when he found the going too tough. The Athletics are laboring under considerable of a handicap just now with Eddie and George Verbrick missing and two games in two days was too much.

Saturday the A's played and lost to the state prison team at Waupun. Next Sunday the Athletics are going after that eighth win when they meet Neenah K. C. team at Neenah.

BADGERS IN TIME TRIAL AT 'KEEPSIE

Row Against Tide Sunday but Manage to Turn in Creditable Time

Poughkeepsie, N. Y. — (P) — Bear stories from the camp of the Washington huskies met with skepticism today in the city of at least one of the eight other colleges training here for the intercollegiate rowing regatta Thursday.

Across the river on the point where the Navy oarsmen are encamped, the veteran Richard A. Glendon, coach of Washington's arch-rivals, listened to the report that Lawrence Schoel of the huskies varsity had strained a shoulder muscle in a time trial and was expected to be out of the race.

"This is the first time I ever heard of a man hurting his shoulder by pulling on an oar," said Glendon. "Something is always happening in that Washington camp."

The announcement of Schoel's injury came from Coach Al Uhrlickson in apparent good faith and was backed by the information that Schoel would not be in the boat today.

Wisconsin even took to the river yesterday and tore off the full four miles in an energetic time trial. As the Badgers chose an hour when the tide was against them the time announced was slow — 23 minutes. Washington made it in 20:20 with the tide on Saturday.

Mike Murphy of Wisconsin brought into his varsity crew to day Poughkeepsie. This eighth stands out as the lone middle-western standard-bearer in a race against the far west and the east. The crew contains plenty of power but so far Murphy has not been able to get the maximum speed out of his somewhat inexperienced material.

What the Stars Did Yesterday

Babe Herman, Robins — Hit fourteenth and fifteenth homers, each with one on, to help beat Pirates, 9-6.

Charley Jamieson, Indians — Collected three doubles against Athletics' pitching as Indians broke losing streak.

Fred Frankhouse and Ben Cantwell, Braves — Divided pitching duty and gave up only seven hits as Braves beat Cubs, 3-2.

Art Shires, Senators — Got three singles, drove in four runs and scored two as Senators trimmed White Sox.

On their journey into the east the reserves played for the most part, like veterans and they still have their chance at the flag, although they did not do quite as well on the trip as they would have wished.

Tenacity Of Brooklyn In National League Race Is Big Surprise

BY HUGH S. FULLERTON, Jr. Associated Press Sports Writer

CONSIDERING the closeness of the rivalry among the National league clubs, the tenacity of Brooklyn as leader of the circuit is something really remarkable. The Robins, who caused something of a surprise when they first gained the top, have shown the way to their rivals for nearly a month despite numerous threats to their security.

In the past two days, the Chicago Cubs, who have been right on Brooklyn's heels had a big chance to assume the lead after Brooklyn had tossed away a few games through careless fielding. But the Robins lightened up and won three contests while the Cubs failed to stand the strain of pursuit and dropped 21 games behind yesterday with a 3-2 defeat at the hands of the Boston Braves while Brooklyn was downing Pittsburgh, 9 to 6.

The costly Robin errors disappeared suddenly when first place was in danger while the Robin bats swung into effective action.

Brooklyn came from behind yesterday, paced by two home runs by Babe Herman and one by Johnny Frederick, to score six runs in the seventh and eighth innings off Larry French, Pirate pitcher. The Cubs made two homers off the delivery of Fred Frankhouse, recent Boston acquisition, and one of them was Hack Wilson's twenty-first of the season, but they could not get any other counters while the Braves ten hits scored in three different innings.

GIANTS PICKUP GAME
The New York Giants picked up a game on the Cubs, remaining three games behind, by putting on a performance similar to Brooklyn's.

They got to Bennie Frey in the seventh and eighth for three runs at a time and took a 6 to 4 decision from the Cincinnati Reds.

The St. Louis Cardinals attained a 500 average again by taking two games from Philadelphia. The Cards eluded 33 hits against five Phillie pitchers to win by scores of 12 to 3 and 9 to 3. Flint Rhem and Burleigh Grimes, held the Phillies well under control.

The Detroit Tigers altered the American league standing a bit by winning a pair of games from the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 3 and 4 to 2. The double triumph while St. Louis was dividing a twin bill with the New York Yankees, put the Tigers into fifth place. Detroit scored all of its runs off Milton Gaston in the first game in one inning without earning one. A homer by Gehring provided the margin in the short second contest.

The Tankees picked up a half game on the leading Philadelphia Athletics, who moved to Cleveland for Sunday and dropped the final contest to the Indians, 4 to 2. Wes Ferrell broke Cleveland's losing streak, holding the champions to seven hits. The Tankees had as much luck as Detroit. The scored all their runs in one inning to win the first game, 5 to 4. After Gullie had dropped a fly that would have retired the side, The Yanks could not make their 12 hits count in the second contest and lost by a 5 to 2 count.

Washington, with Ad Liska pitching a five-hit game and Art Shires leading the attack on his old team with three blows that drove in four runs, picked up a full game on the Athletics by throwing the Chicago White Sox, 10 to 3.

APPLETON Merchants of the Central Wisconsin league got back into the win column Sunday when they defeated Shiocton on the Wilson school diamond, 6 and 5.

Shiocton stepped off to a one run lead in the first inning when the team scored two runs and Appleton came back with one. The Merchants then evened the count in the third frame but staged a big rally in the fifth inning which netted four runs and which put them out in front.

The invading team almost evened matters in the ninth inning when they put on a rally all their own and scored three runs. The uprising was put down just in time to keep the game from being tied up and going into an over time battle.

The biggest upsets of the day's league games came about in the New London-Readfield game which the former won 5 and 2. Murphy's Corners also upset the dope bucket in beating the Weyauwega team, 9 and 6.

READFIELD LOSES BASEBALL GAME TO NEW LONDON NINE

Stewarts Start Early in Fracas to Rout Visiting Squad

New London—Readfield was given quite a surprise Sunday and the fans were treated to a good game, when the local baseball team easily whipped the visitors by a score of 6 to 2. Charles Stewart's boys started on a rampage in the first inning. Sweedy, first man up drew a pass, Wilson took one in the ribs, and Westphal one in the shins to load the bases. Dobberstein got the first of his four hits by poking out a two bagger. Magolski and Dayton struck out to end the inning. Dernbach's speed in beating out a slow roller down the third base line enabled him to score a run in the second inning. Readfield did not score until the fifth when "Big Bertha" Lathrop shot a double over the fence to send one of his teammates in.

Lathrop's batting was about the only feature of the Readfield offense. He also stopped several high, low and wide pegs to first base. Readfield made their last score of the day in the sixth, while New London also scored in the fifth and sixth. The locals got their last run in the eighth on two doubles by Myers and Westphal.

Readfield had a chance to score in the sixth but a dandy peg from the outfield by Sweedy held Wolfarth on third. Wilson played a nice game as second, as did Edminister at short. Both boys had plenty of chances and were kept busy during the game. Very few balls were hit to the outfield. New London left plenty of men on bases during each inning but at times lacked the necessary push to bring home their runners.

RAPIDS OVERCOME TWIN CITIES TEAM IN 10-INNING SCRAP

Muench Back in Lineup, but Eastling Proves Too Much for "Pails"

Menasha—"Specs" Eastling, Wisconsin Rapids hurler, held the Neenah-Menasha "Pails" in check for ten innings, Sunday, while his team mates squeezed out a five to four victory. Eastling allowed eight scattered singles, and four scores were the Rapids' offense connected with Nixon's offerings for 11 bingles, scoring five runs.

The winning run was scored when Sandrin singled in the first half of the tenth inning and advanced to third on two sacrifice hits by Huber and Plummer. Judnick rapped out a safe hit, and Sandrin came in. The game ended in the last of the tenth with a double play, Tangen to Decker, to Judnick.

Although the "Pails" played with their old fire, with Muench back in the lineup, threatening weather prevented a number of fans from attending the game. The grand stand was only when rain forced the bleacher rosters under cover.

Things looked bad for the "Twins" in the first inning when Tagben walked and Decker and Hribernick both singled to fill the sacks. Defensive play tightened, however, and Sandrin fowled out, Huber grounded to Powell and Plummer followed suit.

In the third frame, the Rapids squad began plastering Nixon's offerings all over the lot. Decker grounded out, but Hribernick singled, Sandrin drew a walk, and both men scored when Huber drove a long hit to deep center field. As Sandrin came in, Hribernick shared the throw from center, and the play was so close at the plate that Jansen's safe decision brought both teams and most of the fans to their feet.

The parade wasn't over. Plummer, the next man up, doubled, scoring Huber from second, and Judnick walked advancing Plummer who scored when McClain rapped out a safety. Nixon tightened down to strike out Eastling, and Tangen, the ninth man up in this frame, flled out to Crabby Lewandowski in center field.

The "pails" came back in the fourth inning, scoring three tallies. Muench, captain and second baseman, rolled a perfect bunt down the third base line and beat out the throw. Leopold doubled and Jerry Powell drew a walk to load the bases. Johnny Sheleske responded to a big hand from the fans by dropping a long two base hit over the left field fence and both Muench and Leopold scored. Powell scored the third tally of the frame when McClain, Rapids' catcher, tried to catch Sheleske at second, and threw into center field.

The score was knotted when the "Pails" came to bat in the fifth inning. Nixon was safe at first when Decker muffed an easy ground ball to short, and advanced to third when Harry Leopold dropped a Texas league back of second base. Powell singled, scoring Nixon, before the Rapids' defense tightened to end the frame.

Neither team scored again until the Rapids' aggregation came to bat in the first of the tenth inning. Sandrin singled between first and second, and advanced to third on sacrifice hits by Huber and Plummer. Judnick singled to force in the winning run.

Twin city hopes came up in the last half of the frame when Leopold followed Muench's fly out to center by a sacrifice to right field, and Powell drew a two base hit. The game ended when Sheleske rolled a ground ball to Plummer, near second base, and the ball was flipped to Decker covering the bag, and then to Judnick at first for a double play.

Menasha—William Nelson, secretary of the Menasha Woodmenware company and a stockholder of the Menasha Paper Mills company, Saturday bought the real estate and personal property of the Menasha Paper Mills company for $100 subject to the mortgage of $50,000 and interest.

The plant was sold by the receivers, J. M. Levin, Oshkosh, and E. H. Jaynes, Cleveland, O. The receivers have been acting for 16 months.

The order for the sale was issued by Judge C. M. Davidson, Beaver Dam, presiding in the absence of Judge Beglinger. Frank B. Keefe appeared for the receivers.

The sale was ordered in connection with the case of J. M. Levin, Dell Osborn, and S. Levin (doing business as the Osborn Hay and Milling company) versus the Menasha Paper Mills company.

The receivers reported that due to market conditions it would be impracticable for them to continue operation of the plant except at a loss. It was necessary to wind up the affairs of the receivership and dispose of the property for the benefit of the creditors, it was stated.

Charles And Anne Parents Of Son At Morrow Dwelling

Dwight Morrow Lindbergh, after his graduation, were mentioned as probable choices.

Preparations which had been made for Mrs. Lindbergh's reception in a New York hospital cancelled several days ago and hospital equipment and two nurses were installed in the Morrow home.

ARRIVAL KEPT SECRET

The arrival of messengers trooping up the drive to the house was the only sign about the Morrow home to indicate that so momentous an event had taken place as the birth of a young Lindbergh. There were even persons within the house at the time who did not learn of the birth until they left and were informed by outsiders.

Among these were Mayor C. P. Kitchell of Englewood, and Daniel Fennerty, Republican national committee man, who had called on Ambassador Morrow.

"I am a bit surprised," Mayor Kitchell said, "for I left Ambassador Morrow after 5 o'clock and he never said a word about it. Come to think of it, a gentleman passed me in a bit of a hurry while I was in the house but he wouldn't talk to me. He must have been the doctor."

Mrs. Lindbergh, who has been her husband's constant companion in the days since their marriage May 27, 1929, was confined to bed for a few days of the baby's birth. Last Thursday she flew with Colonel Lindbergh from Tetersboro airport to Hartford, Conn., and returned. Ten days previously she had accompanied him in a test flight of a small monoplane.

The only description of the baby was the statement of a servant in the Morrow household who was quoted as saying that "he looks like his father." He has blonde hair and blue eyes.

Friends said Colonel Lindbergh took the news of his son's birth with an appearance of outward calm, but that the grandfather, Ambassador Morrow gave frank expression to his elation.

They also said that the arrival of a boy conformed to the wishes of both Colonel Lindbergh and his wife for a son.

CANCEL BIRTHDAY PARTY

Mrs. Lindbergh had invited a few friends to celebrate her birthday with her. Plans for the birthday party were hastily put aside for the advent of young Mr. Lindbergh.

Mrs. Lindbergh is a graduate of Smith college, Amherst, her classmates were known as a studious, dreamy girl, with a talent for writing poetry.

Anne Morrow was with her parents at Ambassador Morrow's post in Mexico City in December, 1927, when Lindbergh flew to the Mexican capital at the behest of the government on a good will mission. He was entertained at the United States legation.

Before the end of 1928 Mr. and Mrs. Morrow announced the engagement of their daughter Anne to Colonel Lindbergh.

On May 27, 1929, the couple were married so quietly in the Morrow home that they were on their way on a honeymoon before the news was learned.

When Colonel Lindbergh resumed living, Mrs. Lindbergh accompanied him. In the last year they have flown about 30,000 miles together. Their trips have taken them to the Pacific coast and back several times, on a 7,000-mile flight to open a Pan-American passenger and mail route, and on a flight of exploration over Central America in search of Mayan ruins.

Mrs. Lindbergh studied flying under Lindbergh's tutelage and flew on an apt pupil. On Aug. 23 of last year she made her first solo flight, and soon after received a pilot's license.

Last January she qualified for a glider pilot's license shortly after she had been found to be married.

On Easter Sunday she was his navigator and copilot in a record flight from Glendale, Calif., to New York when they covered the distance in 11 hours, 45 minutes.

Recalling the their union with which Lindbergh converted his bride to a life in the air, friends were working hard if he would have a safe flight into his plane and liberally wish the young son to be around.

NEW "BARKIES" NOW BRING Dog Actors To The Screen

BY DAN THOMAS

Hollywood, Calif.—Woof...woof...woof! The "barkies" have come to Hollywood.

In each year haven't seen some of these comedies, the dog actors walk, crawl, wear human clothing and speak perfect English, human actions being regarded as "dialogue" for the dialogue, of course.

Their stage has been dubbed by studio employees as Dogville and it is just that. For in Dogville the dogs reign supreme. They have their own "dressing rooms," individual cages for the "stars" and two large wardrobes are filled with clothes made to fit them. And the stars have their own chairs on each set, just as human celebrities do.

DIRECTORS "SELL" IDEA

The dogs were gathered on the M-G-M lot by Zion Myers and Jules White, a couple of enterprising young directors who hit upon the idea of making a series of all talking dog comedies. They went to Harry Tapp, M-G-M executive, who immediately signed them to make six pictures. Only four of those six have been completed, but their contract already has been extended to include an additional six films.

"Directing a dog comedy isn't quite as hard as one might suppose but it does require a great amount of patience," Myers told me.

"Dogs are good actors, however. Once a dog knows what you want he is extremely eager to do the thing right. We have found the dogs very intelligent and they seem to thoroughly enjoy their work."

The greatest difficulty experienced so far has been the synchronization of voices. When scenes are being shot the dogs are made to bark in places where dialogue is desired. Then the picture is run off in the projection room with the human "doubles" speaking the lines. And each line must correspond to the number of lip movements made by the dog.

Your Question And Its Answer

Q.—I have an enlargement of the thyroid gland. The thyroid gland, you will recall, is located just in front of the voice box. Its business is to pour into the blood stream an iodine compound which acts as a chemical regulator of the speed at which the life processes are carried on in the tissue. No one has ever found out by surgical exploration nor by dissection just why this gland should sometimes get large and produce too much of its secretion. However it is known that most organs have two sets of nerves, one of which carries messages that speed up the action of the organ, while the other set holds it in check. These two sets of nerves leave the spinal cord at two very distinct and separate levels of the spine. The Chiropractor knows that the disease we are discussing is brought about by displacements in the spine which interferes with the transmission of the messages tending to retard action in the thyroid gland. This means that the accelerating fibres have it all their own way. Therefore, excess function will terminate in excess growth. The proper spinal adjustment should overcome the trouble.

QUESTION: What is that instrument you are using in your practice?—P. R.

ANSWER: It is a newly invented instrument which enables me to locate nerves that are under pressure. This instrument called the Neurocalometer enables me to be certain in my work. It proves that nerves can be impinged. It proves the philosophy of Chiropractic.

Murder at High Tide

By CHARLES G. BOOTH

Chapter 37
SHOTS FROM THE TOWER
ALL of us were breathless as Flaque continued.
"First we shall consider the murder of monsieur. It is perhaps 200 yards from this room to the tower. The north windows of the tower and the patio window of the room are on a—um—that word, M. l'Antiquaire?"
"Diagonal line, do you mean?" I inquired.
"Mais oui. From the tower at night one may observe this writing table and the fireplace. It is clear that M. Johns, up in that top room, saw M. Hunt leave M. Parados. He then took up his telephone and summoned Mr. Parados, who answered, as Mlle. Ferris, and M. Johns himself have testified.
"Perhaps they talked of the fury of the Gut, as that Johns said. I do not know. Is it not sufficient that monsieur stepped to the window and opened it, and that Johns shot him from the top window of his tower, and that monsieur dropped at the feet of madame, who approached the window at that moment?"
"You can't tell me that any man with a pistol—"
"If M. le Deputy will contain himself—"
"Sorry," Samuels grunted.
"The alibi of Hendricks," Flaque continued unperturbedly, "supported M. Johns' statement that he had not left his tower. But what of the killing of that poor Granger? M. Johns, I have said, aspired to perfection.
"Very well. This Johns desired a shot to be discharged in the library at the moment he shoots Granger from his tower. There was a problem, for any man, but those three, le Balafre and Ciceron Bec and Jules Lacote—were they not devotees of cleverness?
"Granger, M. Johns remembered, laid kindling in the grate each morning. And so M. Johns prepares a blank cartridge and before the time of the high tide he conceals it among that kindling. When the flame heats the blank it will explode. No one but Granger will light the kindling. That clever one, Johns, departs unobserved, as he came—by the patio window, which he leaves open, monsieur!"
"Damned clever!" Samuels ejaculated. "But what about The Gut? He wouldn't be able to hear the shell in his tower room for the row in the Gut?"
"Has monsieur forgotten the telephone upset on the writing table?" Flaque inquired. "Did I not assure him it was the living tissue? M. Johns left it so, my friend, and hurried to his tower. I suspect that clever one telephoned to Granger and commanded him to light a fire in the library."
"That is just what happened," Celia interrupted. "I was in father's room at the time. His telephone rang. It must have been Johns, although father didn't say. Whoever it was, wanted a fire in the library, he said."
"You have that picture, yes?" Flaque resumed. "M. Johns looks out of his dark tower window. . . his telephone and his weapon are ready. Granger enters the patio. That rascal, Johns, has his telephone strapped to his ear. . . he seizes his weapon and presses closer to his window. Outside The Gut is in torment. . . Granger enters. He bends forward. . . his back toward the patio window. . . he strikes the match. . . then crack, as the shell in the grate explodes. It hangs upon the ear of M. Johns and he fires his weapon with an accuracy. . . Measieurs et mesdames, it is done."
Flaque had given us a pretty vivid picture. Celia was weeping, and Caroline's arms were around her. "And I clinched his alibi by phoning to find out if he were in the tower," Samuels muttered in deep disgust. "What was the weapon, Flaque?"
"It was a rifle, M. le Deputy."
"Nonsense!" Samuels exploded. "Those bullets had the rifling marks of a Colt forty-five automatic pistol. What's the answer?"
Flaque twirled his mustache. "The weapon, monsieur, was a rifle—a rifle of the Springfield army pattern, and it had—"
"It couldn't have been!" Samuels shouted.
"—and it had," Flaque continued unperturbedly, "the rifling of a Colt forty-five automatic pistol."
Samuels drew a handkerchief across his forehead.
"That's a pretty big chunk of swallow," he said. "It takes an expert to do a job like that."
Flaque beamed. "Did I not inform you that it was thought the infamous Jules Lacote once served in an arsenal in France? Clearly, he would have the knowledge. Did not poor Granger have a lathe in his workshop? Has not M. Anners informed us that Granger sometimes took the little vacation?"
The rifling is the big job, as you say. But to one who has served in an arsenal of France, who has the shrewdness, the terrified heart, much time, and a trifle of money, is nothing. Monsieur, that Johns had all of those. And if certain trifles had to be made at a factory, what of that?"
"I guess you are right," Samuels said somberly. "He must have done it."
"Precisely. You shall see."
Flaque took himself into the billiard room, reappearing with the game bag, the long steel rod he had found in Granger's workshop, and a rifle—not the one I had relieved him of, but a 1906 Springfield army rifle.
"This rod, M. le Deputy—you have seen it before, yes? It is the cutter rod. Thus—touching the metal piece into which the rod fitted—"the cutter. As the grooves in the rifle are to be deepened this cutter may be raised by—um—inserting a trifle of paper under it. Monsieur understands the process, oui?"
Samuels shook his head impatiently.
"The rod and the cutter—are they not pulled back through the barrel, turning, as they come, according to the twist, is it?—that is desired? Thus a shaving of steel is pared off, the rod returns, the cutter is raised, and the artisan—does he not repeat that process until the rifling is finished?"
Flaque took up his rifle. "Monsieur has observed these bands of steel. Witness the bore of the rifle from the caliber .308 to the caliber .45 weakened the barrel and M. Johns—the word, M. l'Antiquaire?"
"Compensated for the lessened resistance of the barrel—is that what you mean?" I ventured.
"I thank you, monsieur," Flaque bowed. "That infamous Johns compensated for the lessened resistance of the barrel strengthening it with these bands of steel."
Flaque put the rifle down. "The cartridge was a nothing for one of his skill. Would he not remove the bullet from the .30 caliber rifle cartridge, cut off the thin end of the cartridge case, and force the .45 caliber pistol bullet into the rifle cartridge he had cut down?"
"Clearly, M. Johns disposed of his tools when he had finished with them, and almost certainly he cast them into the sea. Perhaps he did not cast that rod far enough and poor Granger found it one day when he looked to his lobster traps at the low tide."
"Where was the rifle, you ask? Certainly, M. Johns would not hide it in his tower. No, he would put it where no one would expect to find it—no one but Anatole Flaque, perhaps," and the little man twirled his mustache.
"And where was that but in the fat stomach of that old cannon in front of the fort?"
Flaque's face sobered. "Poor Granger! Clearly, he was—how you say it?—reconstructing the murder of monsieur from the rod and his shaving of steel. A man of intelligence, Granger!"
Samuels winced at that and so did I. It seemed now that we should have deduced something of the truth from the facts. Flaque had flaunted in our faces so persistently Tien Samuels asked the question that must have been in the mind of every one of us.
"What about the motive?" he asked morosely. "Why did Johns kill Parados after living on San Lucas for 20 years?"
"That final question! Flaque answers it in the concluding chapter—tomorrow."

RATES ON COAL TO POINTS IN STATE WILL BE LOWERED

Interstate Commerce Commission Sustains Charge of Unreasonable Rates

(Post-Crescent Washington Bureau)

Washington—Rates on bituminous coal to points in southern Wisconsin from mines in northern Illinois and Indiana will be lowered, according to a decision just handed down by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

The Illinois Coal Traffic Bureau sought lower rates from all Illinois mines, charging that the present rates were unreasonable and unduly prejudicial in favor of rates from west-hank Lake Michigan and Lake Superior docks to Wisconsin and Michigan.

The Commission sustained the charge of unreasonableness in regard to southern Wisconsin destinations and ordered rates lowered, but it found the present rates reasonable for the rest of the Badger state.

The lowered rates will apply to Beloit, Janesville, Burlington, Monroe, Portage, Fond du Lac and Prairie du Chien, and may not exceed, respectively, $1.40 per net ton to $1.45, $1.50, $1.55, $2.15, $2.25 and $2.25.

Giving its reasons for these reductions, the Commission says: "The rates from Illinois mines to Beloit and Janesville, in the extreme southern portion of Wisconsin, are generally on a higher level than rates from the same origin groups to Chicago and related destinations, such as Milwaukee, which are competitive with Beloit and Janesville."

"The rates to the latter points, and to Fond du Lac and Portage in southern Wisconsin, are also higher than the Illinois intrastate rates to destinations in northern Illinois, most of which however, appear to be affected by the relatively low rates to Chicago and Milwaukee. For instance, from southern Illinois to Illinois points directly south of the Illinois-Wisconsin line, the rate is $2.17, compared with the assailed rate of $2.15 from southern Illinois to Beloit and Janesville, just across the line."

HERE ARE OLD RATES
The present rates from northern Illinois are: to Beloit, 108 miles, and Janesville, 119 miles, $1.75; Portage, 203 miles, $2.47; Fond du Lac, 216 miles, $2.55.

Speaking further of the change in rates, the Commission's decision says:

"The present rate differences are all substantially more favorable to southern Illinois than they would be on the basis of the Holmes-Hallowell scale that applies from Lake Superior docks, and this is also true of the relationship with the northern Illinois rates, except to Fond du Lac, Portage, Chippewa Falls, Eau Claire, Marshfield and Stevens Point."

"The rates from northern Illinois to the first two destinations are herein found to be unreasonable and will be required to be reduced. The rate from Milwaukee to Chippewa Falls for 248 miles is made the same as the rate from Duluth to the same destination for 148 miles. Eau Claire takes the same rates as Chippewa Falls from both the docks and the Illinois mines."

"Marshfield and Stevens Point are directly west of Green Bay, the most northerly of the important Lake Michigan docks, and the haul from Milwaukee is substantially greater than the average haul from the four Wisconsin docks of Green Bay, Manitowoc, Sheboygan and Milwaukee. To Marshfield, for instance the distance from Milwaukee, upon which the scale difference of 99 cents against northern Illinois is based, is 184 miles, while the average distance from the four docks is 152 miles.

"On the basis of the latter distance, the rate difference would be $1.20 instead of 99 cents."

"In determining the issues in this case we have not failed to recognize that while northern Illinois is no longer the dominating factor in the competitive market in this destination territory, it is none the less entitled to reasonable rates."

Intervenor at La Crosse and Winona complained that rates on their fine coal from Illinois mines should be lower than lump coal rates rather than the same. The Commission dismissed this subsidiary complaint.

STATE FIREMEN TO STUDY LATE METHODS

Many Wisconsin Cities to Be Represented at Summer Session at Madison

Madison—(P)—Firemen from more than 80 Wisconsin cities and villages will fight fire and smoke with textbooks and lectures for four days here this week.

The 1930 short course in fireman ship will be held June 24-27 at the University of Wisconsin. The course will furnish the latest information available on fire fighting, fire prevention and the training of firemen.

Prof. H. E. Pulver, chairman of the committee in charge of the fireman school said the early enrollment indicates a wide interest in the state among both volunteer and paid departments. The course is conducted jointly by the state industrial commission, the State Fireman's association, the Paid Firemen's association and the Extension division of the University of Wisconsin.

FARMER EXTENDS RADIO TO BARN; MILKS TO MUSIC

The cows in the barn of Arthur Schmelling, town of Center farm, will chew their cud in the future to the tune of "Yankee Doodle" or whatever other tune happens to be on the air while they are in the barn. Mr. Schmelling has installed a loud speaker in his barn, with an extension from the radio in his home. He says it irks him to have to leave an interesting program and go to the barn to milk the cows or perform his other chores and so he has the radio program with him while he works. The experiment, Mr. Schmelling said, has not yet revealed whether these musical programs will aid materially in increasing the production of milk but he hopes that it will help make his cows "more contented."

ROTARIANS STREAM TO CHICAGO FOR MEETING

Chicago—Rotarians from Alaska, Yugoslavia and 60 other nations in the list between them, were streaming into Chicago today to celebrate in the birthplace of Rotary, the 25th anniversary of the founding of the first Rotary club. To greet them there were 17 of the original club and the founder, Paul P. Harris, Chicago lawyer, who conceived the idea of a fellowship club composed of members of different occupations. A five day program featuring international relations and world fellowship, along lines suggested by speakers of international prominence, from many different parts of the world, began today. An indicated registration of twenty thousand Rotarians and members of their families was under way in the ground floor offices of the Peoples Gas com

NURSES FOLLOW UP HEALTH WORK

Determine How Children Follow Recommendations of Doctors

Followup work in connection with the physical examinations given all school children by members of the Outagamie County Medical society last fall is being done by the school nurses, Miss Mary Orblison and Miss Jane Barclay. Until July 1 the nurses will investigate the remedial work effected during the year and determine how thoroughly the recommendations of the doctors have been carried out.

The nurses urge all parents to take advantage of the early part of the summer vacation to see that children's infected tonsils are removed, defective teeth taken care of and all other ailments that require time for recuperation remedied. Distasteful as some of these things may be, the nurses point out that it is much more sensible to have them done early in the summer, so the child can be fully recuperated before the opening of school in the fall.

The control of contagion during the summer months, states Miss Orblison, is entirely up to the parents. Careful attention to colds and slight illnesses in their early stages can avoid much serious difficulty, she pointed out.

Many, one of Michigan Boulevard's most imposing skyscrapers. The informal opening of the convention tonight at the Chicago Stadium will consist of a musical entertainment by the Symphony Orchestra, Imperial Welsh Singers, Swedish Choral Club and a special chorus of 400 voices. This will be followed by a pageant portraying the growth of Rotary from a little group of four men, to an organization of 153,000 members, in 25 years from one club to 3,339 clubs, in sixty-two countries.

How To Shop

By William H. Baldwin

Cushions and pillows used with porch furniture should be covered with fabric which have been thoroughly rubberized or otherwise waterproofed. Even so, the stuffing should be of kapok, because there is always danger that moisture will penetrate; and the outstanding characteristic of kapok is that it dries readily. The use of small coil springs stuffing suffers from the disadvantage that these springs may rust.

In selecting the materials for porch coverings, remember that "sunfast" is a relative term. The best materials should remain pleasant for several seasons, if properly cared for; but there will be a certain amount of fading from season to season, if these coverings are regularly exposed to the summer sun. Hence, one cannot reasonably expect that material bought and used this year will match in vividness of color the same material and design next season.
